Princeton Astronomer Is Honored for Work By Swedish Academy

Lyman Spitzer Jr., director of the Princeton University Observatory for 32 years and Charles A. Young Professor of Astronomy at Princeton until his retirement in 1982, has been awarded the equivalent of a Nobel Prize in astronomy.

The prize, conferred by the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences, is known as the Crafoord Prize and carries a stipend of $135,000. It is named after the Swedish couple who in 1980 provided the funds for a prize to be awarded annually and consecutively in areas, such as mathematics, astronomy and geophysical sciences, not covered by the Nobel Prize.

Dr. Spitzer was selected for his work in interstellar matter — the dust particles

ETS, in Presentation to Environmental Commission, Claims Expansion Will Not Cause Traffic Congestion

If Educational Testing Service receives approval for the four new office buildings it proposes, and if it implements the intersection improvements recommended by its traffic consultants, along with certain policy changes in employee work hours, there would be a net improvement in traffic flow at those intersections.

That is the thrust of a presentation on ETS building plans as they impact area traffic that was made last week to members of the Princeton Environmental Commission. For its part, the Commission points out that of the nine intersections studied, all but one are in Lawrence, and ETS traffic is already making itself felt at key spots throughout the western section of the Borough without the estimated maximum additional 1,450 employees that will be at the Rosedale Road campus at build-out in 1991.

The joint meeting between Commission members and ETS officials and its traffic consultant took place at the invitation of the nationwide testing organization in its Henry Chauncey Center on Rosedale Road.

Making the presentation with handsomely colored graphics and slides were Roger Wells, landscape architect who heads his own firm of the same name in Haddonfield, and David Mendelssohn, president of Garmen Associates, traffic engineers of Montvale. Representing ETS were David Brodsky, executive vice president; John McBride, executive director and corporate administrator; and Joy McIntyre, in charge of corporate communications.

With the exception of Thomas Poole, Township representative, the full Environmental Commission was present, and the meetino was chaired oy Peggy McNeil, Commission chair. The meeting was suggested by ETS officials, including President Gregory Anrig, in the wake of a letter written by Mrs. McNeil on behalf of the Commission which called attention to the traffic and other environmental effects from the 400,000 feet of new office space which ETS proposes to build over the next six years.

ETS proposes three 3-story buildings of 120,000 square feet each, plus a single 2-story 40,000 square foot building. With some of its operations presently housed in leased space in Ewing and in Forrestal, ETS wants to consolidate employees and operations on its 375-acre campus off Rosedale Road.

The Forrestal lease expires at the end of the year, and ETS has leased space in the Mapletown High School in the Neshaminy, Pa..

8 Stores, Cafe Scheduled to Open By End of Year in Palmer Square

Eight new stores and a cafe will open on Palmer Square within the next few months. The stores, seven of which will be located in the new Nassau Inn addition on Palmer Square East, are expected to open before Thanksgiving.

The Chambers Walk Cafe, which will be owned by the Alchemist and Barrister, is hoping for a December 1 opening.

The largest of the new stores, Banana Republic, is part of a national chain that specializes in natural fiber clothing. At 3,113 square feet, it will be about the same size as H. Gross & Co.

The second largest store, Kitchen Kapers, will be about twice the size of Benetton.

Other new stores include Village Collection and Expecting You (maternity). The latter is the only store to open on Palmer Square West, on the site of the former Joseph Borg Tailor Shop.

Leases are expected to be finalized within the next two weeks with shops selling children's clothing, women's dresses, costume jewelry, and cards and gifts.

The Chambers Walk Cafe will be located close to the Alchemist and Barrister, just up the steps past the restaurant's dining terrace.

It will be more of a takeout place, said John Schmierer, co-owner of the Alchemist and Barrister, its vice president of operations, and a Walnut Lane resident. It will, however, have 40 seats.

The cafe will be open for breakfast, lunch, dinner, and evening coffee. All baking will be done on the premises and will be available to take out.

The breakfast menu will include baked goods as well as traditional breakfast foods. Lunch will feature croissant-type sandwiches and a salad bar, where salads will be sold by weight. Also available will be items such as pates, cheeses, and fresh fruit, as well as baked goods.

The salad bar will be available at dinner, as will a selection of four or five entrees. Frozen entrees will also be sold.

The evening menu will include specialty coffees, such as cappucino. The restaurant is expected to open at 7 a.m. and close at 11 p.m.

Mr. Schmierer says the food will be priced "moderately." "We'll try not to be really expensive and keep prices reasonable."

Tree Replanting Program Along Towpath Unveiled

A program of encouraging the best suckers in existing tree stumps to regenerate, combined with the planting of several hundred shade trees, flowering trees, and understory shrubs along the Delaware-Raritan Canal towpath was unveiled at a public information meeting last Wednesday.

The meeting was held by the New Jersey Water Supply Authority, in the Township meeting room in the Valley Road Administration Building. The Authority is in the final two-mile phase of a $20 million dredging of 32 miles of the Delaware and Raritan Canal to increase the flow of water for its users.

In the process, trees and shrubs along the towpath between the Millstone Aqueduct and the Kingston Lock were leveled in order to accommodate heavy excavation equipment. There was an immediate outcry by

Palmer Square

Mario Mangone, a resident of Princeton and a graduate of the Culinary Institute of America, has been hired to be the cafe's managing chef.

Claudette de Clairville, Palmer Square's marketing director, said that the addition of the new shops will bring the total number of stores to 34, seven of which are chains and 27 individual stores.

Rents are $23 to $30 per square foot. But Ms. de Clairville notes that some of the older stores on the square have not yet reached a rent that reflects market value. "They are being eased up."

A percentage rate structure has been put into effect for those stores that sell goods. When sales reach a certain breakpoint — a figure based on rent, square footage, and sales estimates for that type of store — the store will pay a rent that equals six to nine percent of its sales instead of a rent based on square footage.

More Jobs, More Sales. Ms. de Clairville said that recent figures show 550 people are employed at Palmer Square, including both full-and part-time employees. Although she does not have past figures with which to compare this number, she said that each time a store was replaced with a different one it resulted in an increased number of employees.

She also released figures that indicated a sizable jump in gross sales for the square.

In June, 1984, gross sales for the 65 percent of stores reporting was $519,000. In June, 1985, the figure was $1,800,000. These figures cover the same square footage, with the exception of two weeks of Ann Taylor's operation in 1985. However, the tenant mix had changed.

Christmas shopping season figures also showed a sharp increase. Gross sales in November-December, 1983, for the 65 percent of stores reporting were $645,000. For the same period in 1984, they were $1,550,000. The only addition in that period was the kiosk. Again, the square footage was the same; only the stores differed.

Among the stores whose sales figures helped account for the increase were Benetton, Mooshka, Laura Ashley, Squire's Choice, and H. Gross.

GRANT TO PLAINSBORO

By Johnson Foundation. The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation has given $50,000 and technical assistance to Plainsboro Township to help that municipality computerize its police files and provide word processing capabilities for the police and the township clerk's office.

The grant follows nearly two years of study and planning by Plainsboro Township officials working with Diane Hancharik, the Foundation's director of data systems, who was loaned to the municipality for the purpose. The announcement also follows on the heels of two suits brought by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation against Plainsboro Township in its efforts to halt construction of the Princeton Forrestal Village development pending construction of an overpass at the Route 1/College Road intersection.

Frank Karel, Foundation vice president for communications, said of the grant and the technical assistance, "This project represents the kind of cooperative venture that we want to characterize all our relationships between the Foundation and Plainsboro Township, where we have our headquarters. This project has been of particular interest to us, because it will enable the police department to handle with greater efficiency and effectiveness the traffic and other problems resulting from the tremendous population growth in and around the Township."

Mr. Karel noted that the Foundation "has its differences" with the Township regarding how best to meet future traffic needs at the intersection of College Road and U.S. Route 1. He added: "We hope that these differences can soon be resolved with the same spirit of cooperation that made it possible to bring this computerization project to such an amicable and successful conclusion.

RATES ARE UP

At Palmer Square Garage. Rates at the Palmer Square garage, Princeton's only downtown garage, have gone up from fifty cents for the first hour to fifty cents for the first half hour.

The lower rate had been in effect since early April, when the garage first opened for business.

Collins Corporation Vice President Gary Green said that the company knew the initial rate was too low, but it was established to help people make the transition to a new garage.

On a typical day, Mr. Green reports, there are about 70 empty spaces in the 570-car garage at noontime, the busiest part of the day. "There is no truth to the rumor that there's a shortage of parking in Princeton," he says.

"However, I certainly believe that when the entire Palmer Square renovation is completed, another downtown garage will be necessary."

Last week, Princeton Borough took the first step toward building a 250-300 car garage in the Tulane West parking lot by requesting the Mercer County Improvement Authority to explore the financial feasibility of such a garage.

Collins plans to construct a second garage on Hulfish North. The two together would provide 1000 spaces. However, they replace parking lots that provided 700 spaces to the public on both a long-term and short-term basis.

The two Collins garages would be used for Nassau Inn employees and guests, Palmer Square employees, residents of the planned 140 condominiums, and tenants in the Hulfish North office complex.

CHANGES UNDERWAY

At Post Office. One hundred new post office boxes are in the process of being added at the Palmer Square Post Office. This will allow the 75 to 80 people who have been on a waiting list to finally get a post office box with the coveted Princeton zip code.

Vic Zuczek, Princeton's postmaster, says that all the boxes will be removed from the kiosk and placed in the wall, and all brand new boxes will be installed. "Someone's mail box might be in a different location, but they'll have the same number."

While this process is going on, box patrons are asked to go to the window to retrieve their mail.

Reconstruction of the area behind the windows is also underway. Mr. Zuczek says that this area is very antiquated and that the new design will allow the use of modern electronic equipment, such as electronic scales and calculators. No new windows, however, are planned.

While he says this should eventually speed things up, he admits that service will be slower during the remodeling.

"Nothing" he notes, will be altered in the lobby. "The architectural flavor of the building will not be changed."

Completion of the renovations is expected by the end of October.

MERCHANTS HONORED

By Borough. Henry and Nancy Gross of H. Gross and Company, Palmer Square, were presented with the Borough's Second Annual Entrepreneurship Award at ceremonies held this past Tuesday evening (September 17) at Morven.

Mr. and Mrs. Gross, who live at 132 Balcort Drive, were honored for their creative and innovative management and community service.

Under the first heading, H. Gross and Company has sponsored regular in-store events; provided a ticket selling service for McCarter Theatre and University sports events; and created "Tiger Town," a department carrying University-related merchandise.

AFFORDABLE HOUSING

Sought by Firemen. Princeton volunteer fireman Mark Freda led a delegation of firemen in requesting Borough Council to set aside a percentage of its planned affordable housing for use by the town's volunteer firemen and First Aid Squad members.

Speaking at last week's meeting of Borough Council, Mr. Freda said there was a need for affordable housing for people in the Fire Department and First Aid Squad. He also requested that a number of such units be placed in close proximity to a firehouse, and said that about 15 to 17 firefighters were interested in such housing.

Mayor Sigmund responded by stating that, although everyone is very interested in having some housing used by Borough employees — "and this includes the fire department" — an actual set-aside would be judged "discriminatory."

She said that perhaps a "preferential" list might be set up, if this were not also considered discriminatory."

HOUSING CHALLENGED

Citizens Group Formed. Area residents have hired an attorney to challenge Hopewell Township's recently approved zoning ordinance which places all Mount Laurel housing near the Lawrence Township border.

Calling themselves HELPP (Hopewell, Ewing, Lawrence and Pennington People), the group has hired attorney Michael Spicer of the firm Jamieson, McCardell, Moore, Peskin and Spicer, to file a lawsuit protesting the ordinance which they charge concentrates lower income housing in a small segment of the Township.

Meanwhile, Lawrence Township Committee, concerned about the traffic the zoning ordinance would place on Lawrence Township roads, was expected to decide this week whether or not to join the citizens in the suit or file its own. The deadline for filing is this Wednesday.

Two developers have proposed some 2,049 housing units in the designated "growth" area of Hopewell Township in the vicinity of Lawrenceville-Pennington Road (Route 545) and I-195. The ordinance permits a density of five units to the acre.

K. Hovnanian Inc. of Red Bank, developer of Society Hill on Cold Soil Road in Lawrence Township and in South Brunswick, has proposed a 1,699-unit housing development on two separate tracts totalling 526 acres.

The project would include gardeo apartments, townhouses and single-family homes, which the developer estimates would add 3,500 residents to Hopewell Township. Formal plans have not been submitted to the Planning Board, but Hovnanian has met informally with the township's Application Review Committee to discuss construction plans.

In addition, Lovero & Co of West Trenton has presented preliminary plans to the Planning Board for Twin Ponds, a proposed development of 350 single-family houses, townhouses and apartments located on 240 acres off Brandon Road, near the Lawrence Township border. This development would be wedged in between the Hovnanian developments.

Some 125 HELPP members have signed a petition asking Hopewell Township Committee to study how the proposed Mount Laurel housing will affect traffic, emergency services, water supply, taxes and schooling. Hopewell Township's Mount Laurel zoning ordinance was drafted by a court appointed "master" and approved by state Superior Coort Eugene Serpentelli on August 6. Any challenge must be filed within 45 days of the judge's approval

LOOP BUS ENDS

PAT Picks Up Service. Friday will mark the end of the run for the Princeton loop bus. Some of its service will be picked up by the P bus, operated by New Jersey Transit (which also ran the loop). But it has fallen to Princeton Area Transport (PAT), a year-old private bus company, to try and fill the transportation gap left by the demise of the Loop.

Redding Terrace will be added to the regular P bus route, the Princeton-Trenton-Hamilton line. In ndditlon, New Jersey Transit will continue to run its school bus routes in Princeton.

PAT will run hourly loop service Monday through Friday from 9:15 a.m. to 4:45 p.m., beginning Monday. There will be no weekend service. The route will begin at the shopping center and stop at Redding Circle, Princeton Community Village, the Y, the hospital, Merwick, Borough Hall, Palmer Square, and the Dinky.

'We want to provide some of the service the loop bus provided and add service to areas not serviced before," said Barry Coleman PAT's general manager.

Elm Coort, the new senior housing complex on Elm Road, will be among the new stops on the route. The hus will also go out to the Prospect/Riverside area.

Copies of the new PAT schedule will be available at the kiosk, some stores, the library, and from drivers. Fare is 70 cents. with half fare for senior citizens and students with tickets.

For further information about the new bus schedule, call Princeton Area Transport at 924-5806.

"WE'RE HOPEFUL"

Says Inn Manager. The Nassau Inn is hoping to have rooms open in its new wing and bridge in time for Princeton University's first home football game on September 28. General Manager Steven Rosenstock said he has a waiting list of people wanting to stay at the Inn that weekend.

"We hope to have a temporary certificate of occupancy any day now," said Mr. Rosenstock. "We want to begin renting the new rooms on Monday, September 23."

The Inn plans to open its new addition in stages. The first stage will encompass 42 rooms and suites on the fourth and fifth floors of the hridge and wing. These will add to the existing 118 rooms. The total number of new rooms, when all is done, will be 104.

Mr. Rosenstock said that he hopes all the new rooms will be open by October 4.

Township Fall Cleanup Scheduled For Week Beginning September 30

Fall Clean-up in Princeton Township will begin on Monday, September 30.

Yard and garden debris, such as tree branches, twigs and grass clippings, along with household items such as furniture and appliances, will be picked up on a one-time sweep-through of all Township streets. The fall clean-up collection is expected to take one week, but will be extended a second week if the weather is bad.

Materials to be picked up must be out at the curb by 8 a.m. on Monday, September 30. Residents are asked not to place things at the curb more than one week before this date. Residents in the Township's eight municipal garbage collection districts, whose yard debris is picked up at the same time the garbage is collected, are asked to put out only household items for the Township's Fall Clean-up. Yard and garden debris may be put out for normal garbage collection

To make things easier for the Township employees who perform this service, there are certain requirements for pick-up. Brush, leaves and grass clippings must be in closed, sealed plastic bags or cartons — not in paper bags or easily ripped containers.

Branches and twigs must he bundled and tied, using rope or twine. The bundles should be no more than one foot in diameter and four feet long. Tree limbs must be cut to four feet in length and neatly stacked.

Finally, items should be placed at the curb or edge of the street, not in the street. Refrigerators and freezers must have the doors removed charitable organizations. For a week after lightning struck Mr. Latham was not sure whether repairs could be made in time for this year's shows in early December.

The Township Public Works Department warns that items put out that do not meet these requirements will not be picked up For further information call the Department at 921-7077.

However, members worked almost around the clock over the weekend to assess the damage and begin repairs. On Tuesday, Mr. Latham could report cheerfully, "We can see daylight now. There's a lot of work to be done, but we're going to make it."

Mr. Latham said that when lightning struck his house on a late Monday afternoon, "it was like St. Elmo's fire" and it "scared the living daylights" out of him. Lightning struck the roof peak and knocked plaster off one wall. It wasn't until an electrician came around later "to check things out," that he realized that it had also damaged the seven main power supplies to the railroad, the master digital clock that drives other timing systems, along with 22 detection boards and all the transistors.

The clock has been sent out for repairs, and when it returns club members will begin the long process of testing the interlock system responsible for the stopping blocks and control tower signals. Mr. Latham couldn't give a dollar estimate of the damage, but said that as part of his house the railroad was covered under his homeowner's insurance policy.

A manufacturer whom he declined to identify, has donated a lot of supplies, such as transistors, rectifiers and diodes, he said. Club members, who had already begun adding new animation and scenery as part of their annual upgrading efforts, will work through November to get the railroad in shape for the shows.

Over the past two decades, more than 70,000 people have watched the Pacific Southern Railway's rolling stock wend its way over some 4,500 feet of track. This year's shows are scheduled for the weekends of December 7 and 8, 14 and 15. Reserved shows are held in the mornings, and general admission shows take place in the afternoon.

This year's proceeds will again be donated to the Rocky Hill Fire Co. and the First Aid Squad. Each organization has received sme $2,000 from the club during the past few years.

Public Hearings Set on Peterson Building

The Hopewell Township Zoning Board has set a series of public hearing dates for the application of S.T. Peterson and Co. to construct a 165,000-square-foot office building at the corner of Elm Ridge Road and Carter Road.

The first will be this Friday at 7 at the Hopewell Township Municipal Building, Route 546 and Scotch Road. The next will be on Monday, also at 7, but at the Timber Lane Junior High School in Pennington.

A third will be the following Monday, September 30, again in the municipal building, and the final hearing is scheduled for Thursday, October 3. Both meetings start at 7.

The Peterson firm has submitted revised plans to build on property which straddles the border of Hopewell and Lawrence townships. A use variance is needed to allow the construction of an office complex on the 35 acres in Hopewell Township, as zoning at the site stipulates a minimum 100-acre lot for office research projects.

A citizens group calling itself the Elm Ridge Defense Fund opposes the project, largely because of the traffic it would generate. The controversial proposal has been in and out of court and before zoning and planning boards over the past five years.

DENVER COUPLE VICTIMS

Of Jewelry Theft. A Denver couple lost $200 and more than $10,000 in jewelry following a mixup last week at the Nassau Inn. There are a lot of unanswered questions about the incident, reported Chief Michael Carnevale, who added police hope they will be resolved by a continuing investigation.

According to Chief Carnevale, the couple checked into the hotel on the afternoon of September 7. When they inquired about a safe deposit box, they were told by the clerk that no box was available at the time. The money, and $10,000 to $15,000 in jewelry, were put in a leather pouch and placed in another area in the Inn for safekeeping, Chief Carnevale said.

Between 1 and 2 the next morning, a woman, identified later as in her 40s with sandy brown hair, went to the front desk and made an inquiry about an item she had left at the desk. The desk clerk at the time, Chief Carnevale continued, took the contents of the pouch, showed them to the woman, who said, "Yes, that's mine." The clerk handed it over.

Included in the jewelry were a pearl necklace, a gold bracelet, a gold necklace chain and a pair of diamond-studded earrings.

A Borough detective has been assigned to continue the investigation.

around 3 Saturday morning, she was confronted by a man. He was direct. He asked her to accompany him to his house so they could make love.

The victim refused, police said, and walked away. Undaunted, the man, a black male in his 20s, grabbed her by the left wrist and repeated his request. This time, the woman, pulled away and ran to her apartment where she reported the incident to the police.

Police report that the suspect is about six feet tall, weighs 180 to 190 pounds, has a thin moustache, freckles and is light skinned. He was wearing burgundy jeans, a burgundy pullover, white sneakers, a nylon windbreaker and a felt, fedora-type hat.

FOR WANT OF A SPACE

Double Parker Charged. When 36-year-old Trenton resident Harry Stephson double parked in front of 172 Nassau Street Thursday, his problems were only just beginning.

The violation drew the attention of Ptl. Mark Stillitano on car patrol. The officer stopped and found the car to be in violation of an inspection requirement. A further investigation revealed that it was unregistered, uninsured, bore fictitious license plates and that the operator, Stephson, was unlicensed.

An inspection of the interior uncovered a butcher's knife and blackjack under the driver's seat plus a number of articles of women's clothing, including jackets, dresses and blouses.

Stephson was charged with possession of unlawful weapons and all the motor vehicle violations. A charge of possession of stolen property is pending until police can determine where the clothing came from.

A computer check also revealed that Stephson was wanted by the Mercer County Sheriff's Office on a drug charge. After being charged by Borough police, he was released to the custody of the Sheriff's office.

Truck Driver Charged. Failure to stop at 2:46 in the morning for a flashing red light at Nassau and Bayard Lane last week has led to charges against the driver, Kenneth Jacobus, 25, of High Bridge.

Ptl. Ralph Terracciano stopped Jacobus' tractor-trailer on Stockton Street, and as he approached the cab he detected an odor of marijuana. When the officer observed some cigarette rolling papers in the glove compartment as Jacobus was reaching for his identification, Ptl. Terracciano conducted a probable cause search.

After finding a marijuana pipe in the glove compartment, he asked the driver if he had any more marijuana and Jacobus handed over a plastic baggie from his jacket pocket.

Later charged with possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana and failure to stop for a flashing red light, Jacobus faces a hearing October 2 in Borough court.

THEFT REPORT

Choir Campus Visited. Two thefts from dormitory rooms on the Westminster Choir College were reported Monday morning.

A thief entered an unlocked room in Erdman Hall and removed $65 from the top of a dresser, and a resident of Taylor Hall lost a $50 watch and $2, also from a dresser top. Both thefts took place between 7:30 and 8 A.M.

A university student left his wallet unattended Sunday on the floor of the library in the Cottage Club on Prospect Avenue — an oversight which cost him $300 — and an employee in a Chambers Street shop left her purse unattended last week on a desk. Police report someone walked in the store and removed a wallet which contained the victim's driver's license and credit cards but no cash.

An electronic weight scale valued at $1,700 was reported missing last week from a science room at Princeton High School where it had been locked in a cabinet. Police report no sign of forced entry.

A Moore Street resident last week reported the theft of a $300 radar detector from his unlocked car parked in his driveway, and a $300 radio was stolen from the Volkswagen of a Minnesota resident while it was parked last week in a lot on Nassau Street near Olden. The car had been locked, police said.

A quick-acting thief stole a 1973 Plymouth valued at $1,000.

A $200 bicycle, also locked, was stolen between 8 and 10 in the evening from in front of the Cap and Gown Club.

SIMILARITIES ABOUND

In Friday 13th Accidents. Township Traffic Safety Officer Sgt. Mario Musso, who investigated both, noticed the similarities in two accidents on Friday, the 13th.

In each, the driver had taken his eyes momentarily off the roadway, each was driving a Ford 150 pickup, and each was charged with careless driving.

At 8:43 in the morning as Michael J. Rafer, 26, of Kinnelon was driving on Rosedale, he sneezed. When he put his head up again, he saw the car in front had stopped to turn left onto Province Line Road. He attempted to veer right to avoid an accident, was unsuccessful and plowed into the rear of a car operated by Bernadett M. Connaughton, 27, 102 Blue Spring Road.

Mrs. Connaughton was transported to Princeton Medical Center for treatment of a bloody nose. Her 1983 Ford Escort was totalled by the impact.

Mr. Rafer received minor leg injuries and was able to drive away from the scene.

Strikes Tree. Just before noon, 36-year-old William W. Conner from Trenton, was turning from Drake's Corner Road onto The Great Road. In turning, he thought the mowers in the trailer he was pulling had shifted and he looked back over his right shoulder — and struck a tree.

Mr. Conner and two passengers were treated at the hospital for minor injuries. His 1984 truck had to be towed from the scene.

2 SHOPLIFTERS CHARGED

In Wawa Store Thefts. Two Princeton University students were charged last week by store managers with shoplifting in the Wawa Store on University Place.

A store employee detected Bernard Stiroh, 19, of Forbes College dorm take a package of cookies, eat some of the cookies and then place the package back in a display area. When the night manager confronted Stiroh and asked if he intended to pay for the cookies, Stiroh replied he did not.

He was arrested by Borough police following the 2:41 a.m. incident when the manager signed a complaint.

Police were called to the store again at 2:40 Monday morning after Andrew Ballard, 19, of Pyne Hall left the store without paying for a $1.69 sandwich. He is scheduled to appear in Borough court October 2.

Liquor Violations. Two more university students have been charged with liquor violations.

Ptl. Ronald Wohlschlegel, while on traffic duty last week at Nassau and University Place, observed a liquor transaction take place in front of the Wine and Game store. His investigation revealed that Kenneth Windgard, 21, had purchased a bottle of wine for Steven Silver, 19.

Windgard was charged with purchasing alcohol for a minor and Silver with possession of alcohol by a minor. Both were later released from police headquarters after being issued summonses.

Township police on Friday charged Michael Abara, 26, of East Orange, with attempting to sell cleaning fluid door-to-door on Parkside Drive without obtaining a soliciting permit. He was later released in $100 bail. Police responded after a Parkside resident had called to complain.

The owner of Claridge Wine & Liquor in the Princeton Shopping Center has signed a complaint against Michael P. Breen, 364 Franklin Avenue, for issuing a bad check in the amount of $19.30 in July.

FUTURE CHEMISTS? Richard Drobner of Princeton, a student at Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., and Donna J. McClure of South Bend, Ind., were among a group of ten students chosen from around the country to participate in the University of Alabama's Summer Undergraduate Research Program. They did chemical research at the Tuscaloosa campus.

683 NEW TOWNHOUSES

Proposed in Montgomery. Alf Abrahamsen, a Kendall Park developer, has submitted an application to the Montgomery Planning Board for 683 townhouses on 96 acres off Blue Spring Road.

The area is close to the Princeton-Montgomery border, where apartments and townhouses are permitted as of right. The development will be surrounded by Calton Homes' Montgomery Woods to the north and Blue Spring Mews to the south. It would include 510 townhouses in clusters of six to eight units each, and 128 low-to-moderate income units clustered twice as densely in groups of 16.

The developer is scheduled to appear before the Montgomery Planning Board's Site Plan Committee and Subdivision Review Committee the first week of October, having already appeared once before each. Construction of the first phase, including 250 units, is planned for the spring if the development is approved by the Planning Board.

Sewer service is expected to be supplied by the Montgomery Township Stage II Sewage Treatment Plant. The developer has reserved enough capacity from the plant to provide sewer service for the first phase of the project. According to the Montgomery Township engineer, the plant will have to be expanded to accommodate the entire development.

The township has tentative plans to expand the plant, but has not embarked on formal engineering or cost analysis for the expansion.

Office Complex. Meanwhile, the Montgomery Planning Board has given final approval to Robert Tushak Associates of Hillsborough for the first of four office buildings the developer plans to build on some 50 acres off Route 206 and Orchard Road. The building will be two stories high and contain 60,000 square feet of office space.

The approval was contingent upon signed agreements between the developer and the township regarding intersection improvements and the phasing of

Health Concerns

The following public health information of interest to area residents is provided on a monthly basis by the Princeton Regional Health Commission.

Protect Your Pet's Health to Protect Your Own

No matter how lovable and faithful, the family pet can become a potential health hazard to you or your family. This hazard is rabies, a disease that can affect all warm-blooded animals including dogs and cats. The disease is spread to humans through direct contact with the animal's saliva, as in a bite, and can cause death if not treated immediately.

The safest and easiest way to protect your dog or cat from getting rabies, is to have them vaccinated. The Princeton Regional Health Department offers a free rabies clinic to all residents. The next clinic will be held on Saturday, September 28, from 9 until noon at the Community Park Pool facility.

Wild animals with a high risk of being infected with rabies include bats, raccoons, fox and skunks. These animals should not be kept as pets, and your pets should not be encouraged to chase or hunt these animals. Not allowing your pet to run loose will reduce its chances of being exposed to other animals that may be infected with rabies.

If a human is bitten by a wild animal, several steps should be taken immediately. The animal should be caught or killed so it can be tested for rabies. This should be done by the animal control officer or a pest control service, if possible, to lessen the chances of a second bite. The wound from the bite should be cleaned thoroughly with soap and water, and medical help obtained immediately. All animal bites should be reported to the Health Department.

If a dog, cat or other pet bites a human, obtain information about the owner and the animal's vaccination history from their license. If the animal does not have a license, have the animal control officer capture or contain the animal so it can be observed for signs of rabies. Clean the wound and obtain medical attention.

The number of cases of rabies has been rising in recent years. Its fatal consequences to humans makes preventive measures a must. Be sure that your own pets are properly licensed and have been vaccinated against rabies. If your pet is sick, seek a veterinarian's advice. If your pet is bitten by another animal, contact your vet or the Health Department. Report any stray animals to the Health Department. Finally, do not keep a pet unless you can give it the care it needs to remain healthy and don't allow your children to play with unknown or wild animals.

For additional information, contact the Health Department at 924-3407.

TRENTON ROUNDUP

Trust Fund Approved

The Senate and Assembly have overwhelmingly approved the $2.5 billion environmental compromise agreed upon by Gov. Thomas H Kean and legislative leaders.

Approved were bills to put three segments of the plan on the ballot. These questions will be voted on in November:

• A $190 million bond issue to help local governments finance wastewater treatment programs.

• An $85 million bond issue to create a revolving loan fund to finance the construction of garbage treatment facilities.

• Authorization for the state to take $50 million from a 1980 "natural resources" bond issue and use it for resource recovery facilities.

Missing Child Bill

The State Assembly has approved a measure to set up a state police clearinghouse for missing children cases. Cost of the new police effort will be $1 million.

Also approved was a bill allocating $500,000 to set up a training program to help parents and teachers recognize child abuse and a measure to protect children by allowing judges to consider certain of their out-of-court statements.

The Assembly also passed a bill that would ease local zoning requirements for certain day care centers. Centers with five or fewer children that operate out of a home would be classified the same as any other home occupation, making it easier to get zoning board approval.

The package of bills next goes to the Senate for a vote.

Sexual Harassment Barred

The State Senate has approved legislation to bar sexual harassment in the workplace as well as such harassment that interferes with one's ability to get a job, public accommodations, public services, education or housing.

The measure would clarify New Jersey's Law Against Discrimination by spelling out sexual harassment as an offense.

Library Meeting Sept. 30.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The Public Library's board of trustees appreciates the articles and letters concerning the proposed computer-circulation system. However, I want to correct the date in last week's TOWN TOPICS for the board's meeting with both Borough Council and Township Committee. The Library's consultant on automation and the board will meet at Township hall on Monday night, September 30, not October 30, at 8 p.m.

The proposed computer-inventory charge-out system will be an investment for the community, but it's important to remember it is a total of $485,000 maximum shared by the Township ($315,250) and the Borough ($169,750). Sharing of costs for library service was one of the reasons for the establishment of a Joint Free Public Library of Princeton in 1961.

For more than three years, the Library's board has been working on this project to automate circulation. By using a computer Princeton Public Library will:

- Have much greater inventory control over our 150,000 cataloged books, magazines, records, cassettes, films (worth $3.5 million).
- Streamline the method of reserving materials.
- Expedite the time consuming process of issuing overdue notices.
- Have access to reports outlining what types of materials are most heavily used.
- Be able to free employees from repetitious tasks to give more direct service to our patrons.

Our present circulation system is inaccurate, worn-out, and no longer made. Any change will be expensive, but we have to make a change and the Board has decided to make a change for better library service for our 19,000 card holders. We hope members of the public will attend the September 30 meeting at Township Hall.

JANICE B. STONAKER
President, Board of Trustees

Oops. P.B.A Explains.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

During the past month our P.B.A. mailed out letters for our annual solicitation of funds to support the youth programs in the Princeton and Montgomery areas. Due to an oversight on our part and the part of the firm that does the mailing, a number of letters were sent to residents of West Windsor that have a Princeton 08540 mailing address.

We apologize for any confusion this has caused residents affected by this error and if anyone in this area has any question as to what police/fire or ambulance service they should be contacting in time of an emergency we will be glad to correct any problems, if any, this mailing has caused.

Again, we apologize to the residents affected as well as West Windsor P.B.A. Local #271 which covers that area

JAMES D. AGINS
President, P.B.A. 130

For Library Modernization.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The following is a copy of a letter sent to the Mayor of Princeton Borough

As a Borough taxpayer, I would like a portion of the thousands of dollars I pay in tax to go to the Public Library.

The Library needs expensive equipment to automate, as a once-only expense. May I earmark some portion of my tax payments for this worthy cause? I contribute generously, if with no choice, to our schools although I have no children to benefit; I do use the Public Library and would like to encourage support of its modernization and excellence.

Error on Deer Corrected.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

As a taxpayer of Montgomery and Princeton Townships, both of which foment a zeal for accuracy, I must correct a resounding goof in my letter of September 3. I castigated the white-tail and white-washed the mule deer unfairly, according to a piece by Iver Peterson on page A12 of the September 9, 1985, New York Times, entitled "Rocky Mountain Journal: The Deer Who Dine on Hedges."

To quote: "The town of Boulder, [Colorado] ... is trying to figure out what to do about [mule] deer that make a meal of front hedges and shrubs ... Now the Boulder City Council is considering a new ordinance for winter that would allow the installation of electric fences around houses in the path of the deer drifting across the city's prized greenbelt.

"The idea of an electric fence horrifies the parents of some small children, but others argue that the only other solution would be gunfire, which is outlawed in city limits.

"The deer started nibbling at Boulder when homeowners, charmed by the timid beauty of the animals, began putting out feed for them."

The article also cites the problems of Canada geese, mountain lions, grizzly bears, state legislators "who had been found to make terrible pets," and Alaskan wolves. The article is highly recommended reading for wildlife lovers, if you think we have troubles.

This morning a visitor from Steamboat Springs volunteered a tidbit. The elk herds that in the past few years have been fed whenever snow cover was too deep for foraging are now invading people's back porches and barns. Elk are BIG.

Our family cohabits happily with all local wildlife including fox, pheasant, raccoon, groundhog, deer outside the deer fence, Canada geese that visit us every spring and fall but migrate instead of commuting, and an occasional black bear with or without cubs. It's wildlife we appreciate, not spoiled, over-civilized animal life that once was and should now be wild, and we do everything we can to keep it wild, which is nothing.

DRESSING THE PART

At Merrick's on Moore. "If you love it, you should buy it!" is the philosophy of Barbara Racich, owner of Merrick's on Moore, a new women's clothing store at 6 Moore Street. "Too many people don't treat themselves," she believes. "Getting dressed should be fun. When you clothe your body, you present yourself, make a statement. You don't want the clothing to overpower you. The most important thing is the person. Clothes should frame the person."

The new shop, which had its grand opening last week, is located in the Tree House, behind the Bellows building, and will emphasize personalized service. "We have a very personalized approach," notes Mrs. Racich. "The main thing is to give people what they want. I've always been frustrated when I've taken people shopping, and they haven't been able to find what they want. One of the purposes of this shop is to help people do this. If someone wants a special outfit, I'll do my best to get it."

She expects this to be an important part of the shop's specialized service and already has been contacted by customers asking her to find appropriate and individual apparel for them in New York.

Mrs. Racich also believes in telling the truth. Part of the personalized approach can be advising against an outfit. "I believe in telling people if they don't look good in something if they ask me. We're not trying to sell clothing if it's not becoming on that individual."

With a background that includes "growing up in fashion, in the retail business," attending the Fashion Institute of Technology, working at Sak's as well as a stint as an editor of Mademoiselle and her own color consultation business, she is now delighted to be in Princeton and to have her own shop.

"I've always been in love with this town," she says, "and I always wanted to have a clothing store. I did not want to be in a mall."

Variety the Key. Variety is the key to the shop's collection. For example, she points out that the customer will find a range of selections from gabardine slacks, tweed blazers, silk blouses, mohair sweaters, to good leather bags, formal gowns and unusual coats. Prices vary, and notes Mrs. Racich, "We bought not according to price, but selected what was pretty. We have a real variety. Dresses run from $75 up to $400 for long formal gowns. We have good sterling silver jewelry as well as fun costume jewelry."

Customers will enjoy looking over the latter as they pull open special drawers filled with an array of colorful earrings, necklaces and bracelets.

Dress is certainly more casual than it was years ago when hats and white gloves were the standard. "It's been an evolvement," she believes. There are a lot fewer 'wrongs' or rules. Today, women more and more are dressing according to what's right for them. There is more flexibility. You can wear skirts of any length, for example. A women has more choices now, as all lengths are being shown. She can wear what's comfortable.

"Also," she continues, "things are less limited to season. Patent leather is in this fall, for instance, whereas it was formerly a spring-summer item. Things are much more diverse."

Nevertheless, there are always trends. The 'Look' for fall is closer to the body, more fitted compared to last year's baggy look, she advises. Also, lots of paisleys are in now, as are padded shoulders. Emerald green is a hot color, as well as turquoise which is universal. Wool jersey is the biggest material right now, and real suede is also very popular. Mrs. Racich suggests no one really knows why a color, fabric or style suddenly becomes the rage. "Who knows?" she smiles. "These things just happen."

Sizes in Merrick's range from 2 to 16, although she doesn't want people "to get 'stuck' in sizes. The fit is really according to the manufacturer. They run differently."

Albert Nipon, Kathryn Conover, Nicole Miller, S.G. Gilbert and Raul Blanco are among the labels you will find. Wool suits run $300 and up, soft jersey wool dresses $75 and up, formal gowns up to $400, winter coats $250 and up, and slacks $84 and up.

Accessories, such as scarves, belts, and the aforementioned jewelry and handbags are also available.

As one of her co-workers commented, "The shop is really a reflection of Barbara. The fashions are not those you see in a department store. There aren't rows and rows of the same clothes. It's a very individualized atmosphere."

Indeed, the understated and uncluttered elegance of the decor makes Merrick's a pleasure for the customer. Large attractive dressing rooms offer ample space for trying on outfits. "I believe in comfort," observes Mrs. Racich. "I don't want people to be hemmed in."

Vases of fresh flowers add a graceful touch to the pleasant atmosphere, as does the congenial attitude of the sale staff. An expert sense of style is apparent throughout the shop, and careful attention has been given to the smallest detail.

"Distincitve Clothing for Women" is the shop's motto, and Mrs. Racich hopes the Princeton community will enjoy the personalized service of Merrick's on Moore.

Hours are 10 to 6 Monday through Saturday (till 9 on Thursday).

SOPHISTICATED STYLE AND PERSONALIZED SERVICE are hallmarks of Merrick's on Moore. Women now dress according to what's right for them rather than what fashion dictates, says owner Barbara Racich.

'OLDIES BUT GOODIES' featuring every kind of musical sound are available at the Princeton Record Exchange. Owner Barry Weisfeld buys and sells recordings and has 75,000 new and old records in stock.

It's New to Us

NASSAU TO TULANE

Record Exchange Expands. If you've missed this unique shop at its former location on Nassau Street, just head over to 20 Tulane Street. The Exchange opened its doors in its new location August 29, and the spacious, brightly lit store offers customers a comfortable and agreeable setting as they browse or shop seriously for that special recording.

Owner Barry Weisfeld opened the Nassau Street store five and a half years ago, after a successful career buying and selling records at college book stores all along the East Coast. A stop at the Princeton University Store introduced him to this area, and after subsequent visits, he decided to settle here. He opened his own shop, The Princeton Record Exchange, which stocked some 15,000 recordings, many of which were hard-to-get or discontinued selections.

As its name indicates, the shop specialized in buying, selling and trading records. Customers soon found that they could turn in their "Golden Oldies" or no-longer-loved records for cash or credit toward a new purchase and at the same time have the fun of seeking suitable replacements. Word got around, and the Exchange became so successful that records and customers almost seemed to by vying for the available space.

"We definitely needed more space. The other shop was getting claustrophobic," says Mr. Weisfeld. "We've got 75,000 records in stock now, and people come from a 50-mile radius. This is really one of the best of this type of store. We have variety, the prices are fair, and we check the conditions of the records very carefully."

You can find just about any type of LP record you want. Rock groups, pop vocalists, jazz bands, folk singers and symphony orchestras are well represented in the extensive collection. From Bing Crosby and Judy Garland to Joan Baez and the Beatles to Simon and Garfunkel and Elvis Presley to Luciano Pavarotti and Arturo Toscanini to Fleetwood Mac, R.E.M. and Talking Heads, just about any musical taste can be satisfied

Changeable Market. Big sellers today are New Wave rock artists, but Weisfeld points out that it's a very changeable market. "People's tastes change quickly. Michael Jackson doesn't sell now, for instance, or Barbra Streisand or Barry Manilow. Some of the biggest live draws don't sell as well on records."

Consistently good sellers, however, are the Beatles, Broadway shnws and classical recordings. The classical section is the largest in the store, in fact. Mr. Weisfeld notes this is a reflection of the Princeton community, and that classical music sales make up 30% of all album sales in the store.

He also stocks a limited selection of new recordings and cassettes, but the great bulk of records are used. Their condition is guaranteed, and he takes particular care in examining a recording before it is offered for sale. (A back room in the shop contains hundreds of records waiting for inspection before placement on the shelves).

Prices are determined by supply and demand and condition, and range from 99 cents to $4.99 for used records and $6.99 to $7.99 for new ones. Certain rarities can cost a good deal more, however. If you're looking to sell your old records, he offers 25% to 50% of his sale price. His biggest single purchase was 15,000 records from a private collection, but he is glad to consider individual items as well.

The records are organized according to category and type. Within the classical section you will also find additional classifications such as '20th Century,' 'Historical,' 'Conductors,' 'Performers,' 'Composers,' 'Instruments,' etc. Other sections are marked similarly.

As he surveys the new store, with records in every nook and cranny and more coming in all the time, Mr. Weisfeld is obviously glad of his success. "I'm happy," he remarks, but he also acknowledges the pressures involved in owning a busy store. "There are a lot of details in this business. You tend to take work home with you. And the deeper you get into it, the more involved you become. Of course, you always have to try to please the customers."

"I love records," he adds with a laugh, "but I do not listen to them at home. I like running — it calms me down."

Whether it's the nostalgia of the Big Bands, the haunting quality of a Sinatra ballad, the thrill of an operatic aria or the pounding beat of hard rock, you can find it at the Princeton Record Exchange.

Hours are 10:30 to 6 Monday through Saturday (till 8 on Thursday) and noon to 5 on Sunday.

Lyman Spitzer

and gas clouds between the stars. The academy cited his "fundamental pioneering studies of practically every aspect of the interstellar medium, culminating in the results obtained using the Copernicus satellite."

---

In 1962, under the auspices of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), Dr. Spitzer headed a Princeton University program to design a telescope spectrometer for an unmanned space telescope to analyze ultraviolet light from the stars and observe the nature, motions and composition of gas clouds between the stars. Launched as an orbiting astronomical observatory in August, 1972, the satellite was named "Copernicus" in honor of the great Polish astronomer.

It operated successfully for more than eight years before it was turned off by NASA in February, 1981. Among its many discoveries was that much of the gas between the stars is very hot, about a million degrees Celsius, and that the colder clouds, where scientists think new stars are born, are composed chiefly of hydrogen in molecular, rather than atomic, form.

"Surprised and Delighted." Dr. Spitzer, 71, and his wife Dnreen, who live on Lake Drive, will travel to Stockholm where he will receive the award in person from Swedish King Carl Gustaf XVI in a ceremony on October 3. He said he was "surprised and delighted" by the award, which carries the largest stipend of the many scientific prizes he has been awarded in a career that has also included important contributions in the field of plasma physics.

In 1979, when he was awarded the National Medal of Science by President Jimmy Carter, he was cited "for important contributions to the theory of star formation and evolving stellar systems and plasma physics, including the use of fusion as n source of energy." Dr. Spitzer was primarily responsible for the organization of Princeton University's Plasma Physics Laboratory, initially known as Project Matterhorn.

Today the Plasma Physics Laboratory is one of the world's leading centers for controlled thermonuclear or fusion research. Dr. Spitzer's interest in this field began in 1951, when he approached the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission with an idea for providing an almost limitless source of poewr by containing and harnessing the nuclear burning of hydrogen at temperatures comparable to that of the sun itself, — onthe order of a million degrees or higher.

Dr. Spitzer was director of the Plasma Physics Laboratory until 1967, when he was named to a five-year term as chairman of the University Research Board, which recommends policies for all sponsored research at Princeton.

A member of the Class of 1935 at Yale, Dr. Spitzer spent a postgradoate year at St. John College, Cambridge University. He earned his doctoral degree at Princeton in 1938 and returned to Yale to teach ontil his appointment tn the Princeton faculty in 1947.

Doring World War II, he was engaged in scientific work on underwater sound research and its relation to undersea warfare. He joined the Princeton faculty in 1947 as professor, chairman of the Astronomy Departmenl and director of the Ohservatory. In 1952 he was named to the Charles A. Young Professorship of Astronomy.

Idea for Space Telescope. His interest In space astronomy began immediately after World War II and has continued into retirement. In 1946 he wrote an article analyzing the astronomical programs that could he carried nat by space telescopes above the absorbing and refracting layers of the atomostphere. In particular he pointed oot that our knowledge of astronomy could be revolutionized by a large reflecting telesenpe with a mirror several hundred inches in diameter in orbit around the earth.

Under his directorship, the Princeton University Observntory took a leading role in the development of space astronomy for observations of the stars, first with balloon-borne telescopes, then with small telescopes on sounding rockets, and finally with larger instroments on artificial satellites.

A long-range goal of the space astronomy program has been a larger, permanent observatory in space, serviced hy astronauts and used for many different types of astronomical purpses. This concept, which Dr. Spitzer proposed in 1946, was gradually accepted by astronomers and was formally approved by Congress in 1977. The Space Telescope, with a mirror 96 inches in diameter and five instruments, is expected to be launched in the Space Shuttle in August, 1986.

Many Awards. Dr. Spitzer was awarded the NASA Distingoished Public Service Medal in 1976 "for his pioneering efforts in rocket and high-altitude balloon astronomy, his outstanding contributions to space astronomy as prinicipal investigator on the highly successful orhiting astronomical observatory "Copernicus," and his vision and leadership in articulating the advantages and benefits to he realized from the Space Telescope Program

Other awards include the first James Clerk Maxwell Prize of the American Physical Society in 1978 for "his pioncering investigations of the hehavioor of plasma" and the Henry Draper Medal of the National Academy of Sciences "for his vision and distingoished achievements in space astronomy and for his many outstanding contributions to the physics of plasmas on earth and in the interstellar medium."

He has heen awarded medals by the Royal Astronomical Society of London, the Societe Astronomique de France, the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia and the Astronomical Society of the Pacific.

Among the subjects of his numerous scientific papers are stellar atmospheres, interstellar matter, the origin of stars and the planets, dynamical evolotion of star systems and physical processes in plasmas. An elected member of the National Academy of Sciences and other prestigious scientific societies in this country and abroad, Dr. Spitzer is also an enthosiastic mountaineer and a member of the American and Canadian Alpine Clobs.

ETS

school district for three years with a two-year renewable option. Employees in its Center for Professional and Occupational Assessment and the clerical staff involved in financial aid application processing are in the process of being moved into this facility.

The first stage will involve the construction of the 40,000 square foot building and one 120,000 square foot building within the next three years. The smaller building will be located near the main administration building, the larger in a meadow swale near the Carter Road entrance. Consolidating employees from Neshaminy and Ewing is expect to fill, or nearly fill, the first two buildings, according to Mr. McBride, but ETS may lease out space that is not immediately needed.

In order to do this, the testing organization must have permission from the Lawrence Township Planning Board for general office use in a zone that is presently zoned research/office use. ETS would like to take advantage of the prevailing lower interest rates and construct all four buildings within the next three to six years, leasing space not immediately required.

However, Mr. McBride said that construction of the two additional 120,000 square foot buildings, to be located in woods near the Carter Road entrance, would depend not only on this permission but also on the economy and whether or not the firm's projections of future needs hold firm.

Leasing Opposed. The idea of leasing space out to firms that may not have the same sense of responsibility to the community as one which has been located here for nearly 30 years raised red flags for Environmental Commission members. Members also asked whether ETS would implement policy changes in employee work hours now, when the traffic situation at intersections like Rosedale and Carter is demonstrably "unsatisfactory," as their own consultant's report shows.

The answer, given by Mr. Wells, was "No." He cited higher operating costs inherent in such changes and said that only if ETS were permitted through its construction program to consolidate its employees back from its satellites would it be willing to undertake such costs. The intersection improvements that are being recommended by the traffic consultant include signals and a widening of the intersection to permit a turning lane — no widening of the roads themselves.

The main bone of contention, however, was over the dispersal of ETS-generated traffic through residential roads such as Hodge, Cleveland, Westcott, and Library Place and the long waits at traffic lights at Elm Road and Rosedale Road, Elm Road and Stockton Street, Bayard Lane and Hodge Road.

Mr. Mendelssohn maintained that only 15-20 percent of ETS traffic goes through these intersections and the new construction "was not going to be adding enough significant volumes" to warrant study. By the time ETS traffic got that far, he said, it had dissipated.

"Traffic does dissipate itself," countered Marvin Reed, "but not in desirable ways." It was the ETS view that proposing to pay 100 percent of the improvements at certain intersections, particularly at its two driveways, coupled with the policy changes in employee work hours, would not only manage the traffic generated by its new construction but improve the situation.

40,000 Square Feet?

How big is 40,000 square feet? As a point of reference and guide for grasping what's involved in announcements of proposed office buildings in and around Princeton, it may help to know that No. 1 Palmer Square is a four-story building with just under 72,000 square feet of rentable office space.

"Rentable office space" includes hallways and restrooms, everything but the service core of a building, which contains heating, cooling, plumbing and electrical systems, the stairwell and elevator shaft.

The white CUH2A office buildings ot Alexander Street are listed as having 48,000 square feet of office space. The office building at Thanet Circle off Terhune Road recently completed hy the Joseph Jingoli firm of Trenton is listed at 55,000 square feet.

"You can't ask more of this developer," Mr. Wells remarked, "or of any developer." He pointed out that there would be other growth and development in the area and not all the traffic woes could be attributed to ETS. "We live here too," Mr. McBride remarked. "We're just as aware of the traffic problems."

Another concern of the Princeton Environmental Commission was over runoff into Stony Brook. However, Mr. Wells said all water from parking lots would be impounded to filter out harmful chemicals, and a system of swales and detention basins would slow down runoff from the buildings themselves in an area with a shale subsurface.

The project has been shown to the Lawrence Planning Board for conceptual review, but no formal site plan application has yet been submitted.

Trees

Princeton residents and the citizens group known as the D&R Canal Coalition.

The meeting was to provide opportunity for public comment on the plan for restoration of planting along the towpath. According to Michael Galley, chief engineer for the Water Supply Authority, additional public comment will be received through Friday. Before it can be implemented, the plan must be approved by the Delaware and Raritan Canal Commission, which is scheduled to meet on October 15.

The restoration plan was drawn up by Lawrence Lockwood, a landscape architect hired by the PRC Jacobs engineering firm that is doing the dredging. Roger Wells, the landscape architect who has provided his services grotis to the Coalition, also took part in formulating the plan.

Selective Pruning. Mr. Galley said the purpose of the plan was to try and re-establish growth on the embankment "as soon as possible." A key element is the technique known in landscape architect circles as "copsing," a technique of successively pruning out all but the strongest suckers over a period of several years. Mr. Lockwood noted that the clear-cutting in January had produced "vigorous vegetative growth" from the stumps left all along this section of towpath. The sprouting stumps are of species such as silver maple, ash and black locust, he said.

Mr. Lockwood proposed selecting the most appropriately located stumps for selective pruning. He estimated this might mean some 1,200 in all, eliminating those that are interfering with, or embedded in, the 150-year-old stone wall that lines the canal. In addition he proposes the planting of some 300 balled-and-burlapped shade trees, 230 flowering trees, such as dogwood, and 1,200 bare root berry-bearing shrubs.

Mr. Wells told Authority and PRC Jacobs representatives that the Canal Coalition supports the plan as it has been developed thus far, but asked that more detailed specifications on such things as the exact composition of the material to be used to resurface the towpath be provided. He also asked that a landscape architect be retained to oversee the pruning and planting operations so that they are done in accordance with the plan.

He also asked for a copy of the park maintenance plan, which was outlined so rapidly, and in such an undertone, by Gregory A. Marshall of the Division of Parks and Forestry that it was difficult for the audience to catch. Mr. Wells asked for "clear, specific data so that members of the Coalition can come to you when something is not working correctly." He asked that the Authority, the DEP Division of Parks and Forestry and the Canal Commission "keep the public process going" and suggested a semi-annual meeting for that purpose.

Objections Voiced. Not all members of the audience were enchanted with the landscape plan, however. Dr. Bruce Hamilton, who teaches at Cook College and is about to retire as a member of the Canal Commission, suggested "doing nothing" rather than introducing "alien" balled and burlapped species. "Let time heal this," Dr. Hamilton urged. "Nature will probably do the job better."

"It's a question whether you want to wait until nature takes its course," Mr. Lockwood countered. He disagreed with Dr. Hamilton's prediction that 60-70 percent of the planted trees would die.

David Macrae of Lake Drive objected to "manicuring" of the towpath and urged leaving it in its "rural" state, consistent with the master plan for the Canal Park. Herbert Wright, a South Brunswick resident, called the planting of trees "an intrusion on the historical integrity of the Canal. History has not been given a fair shake." Mr. Wright also argued on behalf of water users in the more densely populated areas of the state north of here and added that "water has not been given a fair shake."

---

Another gentleman, who heads the Center for Canal History, urged "preservation of the artifact" and making the canal "a source of interpretation, an important tool for education and the understanding of our history."

Township Engineer Robert V. Kiser was on hand to ask for the restoration of the 100 trees that were cut down in the Township park at Alexander Road. Mr. Kiser had prepared a plan for the restoration of the area, which also is a combination copsing and planting program, but he had not had a response from the Authority, he said.

OBITUARIES

John Hite, 73, died on September 9 at his home in Princeton after a long illness. He had lived in Princeton since 1946.

Born in New Orleans, La., Mr. Hite had a distinguished career as a consultant to management; as a university teacher of literature and drama; and as a lecturer on management theory and practices and the humanistic development of executives, and on world politics and foreign policy.

In recent years, he lectured extensively to management groups and was an advisor to numerous firms. For more than ten years, he was the director of the Johnson and Johnson Institute of Management in New Brunswick for the parent organization and its associated companies.

Mr. Hite was a pioneer advocate of the study of the liberal arts for business executives and led programs for executives at Johnson and Johnson, at various universities and at the Institute for Humanistic Studies in Aspen, Colorado. He taught English and American literature at Tulane University, Columbia College and Princeton University, specializing in poetry and drama.

In the Air Corps during World War II, he taught the theory of radio transmitters and receivers, and later, as a civilian, he was on the technical staff of the U.S. Signal Corps.

He is survived by his wife, Patience Holt Hite; three daughters, Mrs. Aprille G. H. Deacon of Little Brington, England, Virginia G. Hite of Boulder, Color., and Ruth B. Hite of Princeton; a son, Morgan J. Hite of Princeton; three sisters, Mrs. Ernest C. Thayer, Sister Lucina, D.C., and Sister Rebecca, D.C., and two brothers, Dr. Lad P. and Mark Y. Hite.

ABZUG TO SPEAK

At Seminary. The Synods of the Trinity and the Northeast of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) will sponsor a conference for clergywomen at Princeton Theological Seminary from September 29 - October 2.

The Honorable Bella S. Abzug, former member of Congress and presidential advisor, attorney, and author of Gender Gop, will deliver the keynote address on the role of women as leaders in the next decade and how they can work for transformation and the empowerment of all persons.

Taking its theme from the Biblical story of Sarah's laughter when told she would bear a child in her old age, the conference, entitled "And Sarah Laughed," will address possibilities for women in structures and systems that seem to present only impossibilities. Seminars will be given in the areas of theology, preaching, ministry as transformation in the inner city, personal stress management, and spiritual development. There will also be opportunities for worship and networking for placement.

Miss Abzug will address the conference on Monday evening at 8 following a banquet at 6 p.m. A lawyer for more than 35 years, she was the first woman in history to run for the United States Senate from New York State and for Mayor of New York City. In 1977, President Carter named her presiding officer of the National Commission for the Observance of International Women's Year. Later she served as co-chair of the President's National Advisory Committee for Women.

Ms. Abzug was a member of the U.S. delegation to the U.N. sponsored "Decade for Women" conference in Nairobi, Kenya, this summer. She chaired the symposium on "What If Women Ruled the World?" and was instrumental in drafting the official conference report: "Forward Looking Strategies: 1986 to the year 2000."

A founder of the National Women's Political Caucus, and a member of NOW, Abzug, while in Congress, wrote the first law banning discrimination against women in obtaining credit, loans, and mortgages; fought for Title IX Equal Opportunity in Education Laws; and introduced many other bills to improve the status of women.

For information about registration, contact the Rev. Barbara Chaapel, Office of Public Information, Princeton Theological Seminary, CN 821, Princeton, New Jersey 08542, 921-8300, ext. 240.

Registration costs are $95 and $60 for commuters. For those wishing to attend Ms. Abzug's address only, the cost is $5, $2 for Seminary students, or $10 for the banquet and keynote address.

ORDINATION SET

For Ass't. Urban Ministry. Clarence Carmichael Jr. will be ordained Sunday by the Presbytery of New Brunswick and installed as assistant minister for urban ministry at Nassau Presbyterian Church. Mr. Carmichael will also serve on the staff of Nassau Church to teach, lead worship and train volunteers for the Trenton ministry.

Hanover Street Ministry and Crisis Ministry seek to meet the needs for food, housing and employment of those who are in crisis as well as to address the larger issues of injustice and inequality that exist in the Trenton and Princeton area.

Mr. Carmichael was born in Philadelphia and grew up in South Carolina. He graduated from Claflin University, Orangeburg, S.C. in 1972. In 1980 he completed a Master of Education at South Carolina State College also in Orangeburg. In 1981 he entered Princeton Theological Seminary and received a master of divinity in 1984 and a master of theology in 1985.

Prior to entering seminary, Clarence taught 11th and 12th grade social studies in Walterboro, S.C. He also worked with the New York City Department of Child Welfare as a children's counselor (ages 14-18). While attending seminary he held field work positions as chaplain at Trenton State Prison and as a missioner with Trenton Area Ecumenical Ministry.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

NOW IS THE TIME TO FEED YOUR TREES... with Sam DeTuro

Woodwinds Associates

Just as the best looking people these days are the ones who take the best care of themselves nutritionally, so it is with the best looking trees!

As with every living thing, trees need a diet of carefully balanced nutrients in order to maintain their vigor and proper growth.

In light of the host of potential and actual dangers facing our trees, feeding properly - is the most valuable, and yet least effectively used, "preventive medicine" available to the home owner.

The past three years have been particularly hard on trees; two very severe winters, followed by a year in which the cool, exceptionally wet spring produced ideal conditions for a variety of fungus diseases. Additionally, we experienced an especially bad infestation of gypsy moth, cankerworm, and other leaf-chewing insects. All of these factors combine to weaken shade and flowering trees and, should we experience more of the same, hasten their inevitable decline ... The same, of course, holds true for the beleaguered Elms, which have shown a dramatic increase of Dutch Elm Disease this year.

Feeding this summer is therefore of the utmost importance, it will increase twig and branch growth now, and increase root development in the fall, thereby lessening the danger of winter injury to already weakened trees.

WOODWINDS specially formulated liquid fertilizer has one other benefit: since it is injected directly into the root area at high pressure, it serves to break up heavy soil compection and bring both moisture and nutrients to the roots. It then provides up to two years of slowly released nutrients, assuring the tree optimum benefits.

With the proper preventive care, in the form of spraying, pruning and especially feeding, the homeowner can enjoy his trees with the knowledge that they are at their peak of health and vigor and will continue to provide not only comfort and beauty, but dollars and cents value to his home and grounds. Remember, replacing them may take a lifetime!

WOODWINDS is always happy to answer any questions concerning your trees and shrubs – Please call us at 924-3600.

Not Satisfied with Swimming 4,000 Meters Every Morning, Princeton's Tink Bolster Takes on Triathlon Challenge

Tink Bolster shaved 25 minutes off the official time of her first triathlon when she competed in last Sunday's Monmouth County Park System Sprint Triathlon.

Mrs. Bolster says it was "a nice treat" to have been faster the second time. But considering that this 57-year old Parkside Drive resident competed in her first-ever long distance swimmming-biking-running event in blistering heat just eight days before entering the second, and that both triathlons follow a serious biking accident 13 months ago with hip and arm injuries requiring surgery, "feat" seems to be a better word than "treat."

In late August, Mrs. Bolster competed in the U.S. Masters National Long Course Swimming Championships at Brown University, winning one event and earning a second, a third and two fourths, thus placing in all six events — the maximum allowed — in her age category, 55-59.

That too was a sweet victory — she calls it "very satisfying" — after an arduous comeback.

Serious Training. In 1972 Mrs. Bolster established the Princeton Area Masters Program, a group of age 25 and over swimmers who train seriously in the early morning hours, using the 50-meter Olympic-sized Community Park pool or the 25-yard Dillon Gym pool at the University. Having been taught swimming as a child by a U.S. Olympic swimmer, she found swimming laps at 5:30 a.m. a good physical activity and a welcome change from the rigors of raising 14 children.

In the summer she will swim 4,000 meters a day, including a 1,000-meter warm-up ("I'm a slow starter," she says) and a 500-meter warm-down. That's 80 laps of the Community Park pool before the day even begins.

Over the years, Mrs. Bolster swam in many Masters events all over the U.S. and did "very well" against former Olympic swimmers and people who she says were still swimming as well as they had in their early 20's. In 1978 she set a record in her age group for the 200 meter breast stroke at the U.S. Masters National Long Course Championships at Brown University.

"That was a thrill," she acknowledges, although she was unaware at the time that she was setting a record. "I just swam it and won; it was sort of a fluke."

The following year Mrs. Bolster embarked on a new phase, the study of classical Latin, classical Greek, and French language at Princeton University.

Throwing herself as wholeheartedly into her studies as she previously did into swimming, she had less time for training. However, she continued to swim and to compete in one meet a year.

New Challenge. Early in 1984 she began hearing about triathlon events — swimming, biking and running, in that order. Her competitive spirit sparked anew by the power of suggestion, she began riding back and forth from her home on Parkside Drive to the morning workouts at Community Park pool on an old three-speed Raleigh bike. The bike had belonged to one or another of her children, and the gears had long since ceased to function.

It was hard work, and she thought, "I'll never make this (a triathlon)." Prodded by younger biking friends, she began eying other bikes and eventually purchased a 12-speed Miyata that was just the right size for her small frame. "All of a sudden it was a whole new ballgame. I had gone from driving a truck to steering a sports car."

It was only two weeks after acquiring the new bike and riding it to and from the Community Park pool workout that she had the accident. It was August 2, 1984, and the early mornings were already noticeably darker. Both tires caught in a narrow groove at the edge of Stockton Street, and Mrs. Bolster felt herself flying through the air, conscious of needing to protect her head, because she wasn't wearing a helmet.

Landing hard on her right side, she broke her right hip and shattered her right wrist. Both injuries required surgery, including a permanent pin in the hip. "I was very discouraged." Mrs. Bolster acknowledges. After six weeks, when she could discard the crutches and have an immersible cast so she could get into the water again, she debated whether to return to workouts or to swim in a lane by herself, slowly.

Coming Back. She opted for the workouts, even if it meant fewer laps and at a slower pace. "It was so good to get back in the water. It is easier to swim than to walk, and swimming is so beneficial," she notes. Slowly but surely, with the encouragement of her fellow swimmers, she worked up to longer distances and better times.

In addition to the daily swimming, she pedalled 20 miles a day on a stationary bike. In March of this year, even though she walked with a residual limp, she thought, "Maybe I can do a triathlon after all." At the same time she learned that the U.S. Master National Championships, at which she had set a record in 1978, would again be held at Brown University.

She began biking to and from morning workouts again on the beloved Miyata, which had scarcely been scratched in the accident, and to train for the nationals at Brown. She decided if she couldn't run the third part of a triathlon she could walk it — fast. With a fast-walking friend as pacesetter, she walked: first one mile with a limp, then two with less of a limp, and on up to six miles.

A five-day vacation bike trip with her husband and two of the children, up and down the hills of southern Vermont, provided additional training, and on August 17 she paid the $25 entry fee for the Schooleys Mountain Women's Sprint Triathlon in Long Valley, N.J.

NEW OUTLET FOR HER ENERGIES: Tink Bolster shows off her trusty triathlon training and competing bike. A year ago, on crutches and in a cast, unable even to open a door, she wasn't sure she would enter the triathlon event on which she had set her sights.

The event included a 700-yard lake swim, which Mrs. Bolster says is very different from a pool. It involved a standing start out to an M-shaped course marked off by buoys and then a return to shore. A quick slip-on and lace-up of shoes to cover the 500 gravelly yards to where the bikes were parked, slip into shorts, grab the helmet, and then off on the 15.1 mile bike course.

In the official course description, the bike course and the 4.1 run were advertised as including a "significant" hill in the first mile and covering "rolling" terrain the rest of the way. Mrs. Bolster was the oldest of the 90 entrants, many of whom may not have shown up, for there were only 62 finishers on that blistering hot muggy Saturday.

"I was not the last, and that was a great comfort," Mrs. Bolster says. "It was a great first triathlon, very well run. I didn't feel pooped. I did it, I enjoyed it, and when I got home I had enough energy to do a couple of loads of laundry and some vacuuming." Her official time was 2:20.

Nancy Amermueller of Dayton, whom Mrs. Bolster describes as "a good runner," was first in their 50-59 age category, in which they seem

News of The THEATRES

REP OPENS SEASON

With Fo Comedy. The Princeton Rep Company opens the season Friday with Dario Fo's provocative comedy Can't Pay? Won't Pay! at the Forbes College Theatre on Alexander Road. Directed by Victoria Liberatori, the show features Carol Kehoe, Marjorie Duryea, Timmothy Bass, Jerry Lyden and Jan Applebaum.

This hawdy and biting satire by the author of Accidental Death of an Anarchist pokes fun at everything from the police, government, and bureaucracy to masculine domestic privilege. As the play begins, a riotous group of disgruntled housewives, fed up with inflationary prices, stages an impromptu strike at a supermarket which results in a general looting of the store.

Performance dates are this weekend and September 27-29. Showtimes are Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday matinees at 3. Seats are $7.

For information and reservations call 921-3682.

SIMON COMEDY DUE

As Players' Opener. Barefoot in the Park, the celebrated comedy by Neil Simon, will be the season opener of the Princeton Community Players. It will be shown at the Triangle-Broadmead Theatre, 171 Broadmead, on September 27 and 28 at 8 p.m. and continue on Fridays and Saturdays, October 4 and 5, 11 and 12.

A significant milestone for the Community Players, this production marks a return to the site that was their headquarters for nearly ten years.

Barefoot in the Park tells of a newlywed couple in the throes of moving into an unfurnished, fifth-floor walk-up apartment on Manhattan's East Side. The problems they face — deadly serious to them, hilarious to us — are compounded by the bride's unhopeful and conventional mother and by a breezily eccentric tenant upstairs, who is known in the neighborhood as "the Bluebeard of 48th Street." Blessed with typical Neil Simon dialogue, the play creates laughter more through its characters and unexpected situations than through verbal one-liners.

The young couple, Corie and Paul Bratter, are played by Natalie Shelpuk and Dan Treadwell. PCP veteran Barbara Herzberg plays Corie's mother, Ethel Banks. Churchill Clark, also well known to PCP audiences, is Victor Velasco, the rooftop eccentric. Other parts are played by Doug Gildenberg and Dick Newman.

Gypsy Rose Lee, the legendary first lady of burlesque, and her mother who drove her to fame, are the subjects of the rousing musical comedy. It's a song and dance odyssey of a girl who goes from tank-town vaudeville to the gaudy Minsky burlesque, then on to become an international celebrity. It is also about her formidable and tempestuous stage mother.

The setting is a series of American cities in the 1920's that were on the trail of a stage mother clawing her way up the ladder of vaudeville success on the singing und dancing talents of her two daughters.

Regular performances at Bucks County Playhouse are Tuesday through Friday at 8:30 p.m.; Saturday at 5 and 9; Sunday at 6; Wednesday matinees at 2. Ticket prices range from $10 to $14. Information and reservatiuns may be obtained by calling (215) 862-2041.

Set in the Lyric Theatre in New Orleans, One Mo' Time follows a 1920's Black vaudeville troupe through its adventures on and off the stage. The show, featuring the works of such legends as Ma Rainey and Ethel Waters and the electrifying spirit of the Charleston, Black Bottom and Cakewalk, had a successful run at Off Broadway's Village Gate Theatre from 1979-83.

In an attempt to make patrons' visits to the show as realisitic as possible, the theatre's lobby and audience facilities have been transformed into an "authentic" vaudeville house, with bright lights and ceiling fans and ushers and concessionaires dressed in period costumes.

The cast includes Sandra Reaves-Phillips (Bertha), who starred in the Broadway production, Roisin; Lynne Clifton-Allen (Thelma), who played in Broadway productions including Eubie and Bubbling Brown Sugor; Ellia English (Ma Reed), who performed in both the Broadway and Crossroads productions of Ain't Misbehovin'; Roumel Reaux (Papa Du), who appeared on Broadway in The Wiz and Crucifier of Blood, and Charles Woolfolk (theatre owner), an associate dean of Mason Gross School of the Arts at Rutgers appearing at Crossroads for the first time.

Crossroads Theatre Company, one of the nation's premiere Black Theatre organizations, is entering its eighth season under the leadership of its co-founders, Rick Khan and Lee Richardson.

The 1985-86 season will also feature two recent Broadway hits — Your Arms Too Short to Box with God and Agnes of God — and three world premieres: Tomer of Horses, by William Mastrosimone, the award-winning author of Extremities; a play based on the life of Martin Luther King, Jr., and a new play to be announced in December.

The 150-seat Crossroads Theatre Company is located at 320 Memorial Parkway, adjacent to the Hyatt Regency New Brunswick in downtown New Brunswick. For information or reservation, call (201) 249-5560.

PIANIST TO PLAY

With Chamber Symphony. Princeton graduate Robert Taub, pianist, will appear with the Chamber Symphony of Princeton, conducted by Portia Sonnenfeld, on Sunday, October 6, at 3 in Alexander Hall on the Princeton University campus.

The first of the three-concert 1985-86 subscription series, this concert will feature Salieri's Overture to The School of Jealousy, Elliot Carter's Elegy, and two concerti, Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 20 in D Minor, K. 466 and Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 3 in C Minor.

Although only in his twenties, Mr. Taub is considered a leader in a new generation of international virtuosi. In 1981, he won the Peabody-Mason Award of Boston and in 1982 he received the Pro Musicis Foundation Sponsorship under which he has been presented in performances in major U.S. cities and abroad. He has been guest artist at various international festivals including Musica Nova in Glasgow, the Scotia Music Festival, the North American New Music Festival, and the Britt Gardens Festival in Oregon.

Three-concert subscription tickets are $20, $16 for senior citizens and $6 for children and full-time students. Single concert tickets are $10, $8, and $3 respectively.

For further information, contact The Chamber Symphony of Princeton, 67 Lambert Drive, 921-2879.

SEASON OUTLINED

By Choral Group. The Princeton Pro Musica, conducted by Frances F. Slade, will present its seventh season of concerts featuring classical choral music this fall.

The subscription series begins on Sunday, November 3, at 3 p.m. with a performance of Beethoven's Mass in C with full chorus, orchestra and soloists. The soloists are Linda Wall, soprano; Mary Wescott, mezzo soprano; Wayne Hehr, tenor; and William Riley, bass-baritone. The program also features the Chamber Chorus in Persichetti's Mass and the orchestra in Schubert's Symphony No. 5. This concert will be held in Alexander Hall, Princeton University campus.

On Sunday, December 22, at 3 p.m. in the War Memorial Auditorium in Trenton, the Princeton Pro Musica will sing Handel's Messiah. Chorus, soloists and orchestra will present the complete oratorio. The soloists will be Martha Elliot, soprano; Martha Jean Howe, contralto; Frederick Urrey, tenor; and David Evitts, baritone.

The last concert of the season will be on Sunday, March 23 at 3 p.m., once again in Richardson Auditorium. This concert includes Haydn's Paukenmesse ("Mass in Time of War") and the world premiere of David Kraehenbuehl's Drumfire, a cantata on themes of war and peace, which was commissioned for the Princeton Pro Musica by Goff Owen, Jr. of Pennington. Soloists will include Kathryn Olsen, soprano; Sondra Gelh, mezzo soprano; Bruce Turner, tenor; and David Arnold, baritone.

Tickets to individual concerts are $10, $8 for senior citizens or student. Subscriptions, available until October 1, to the three concert series are $24, $20 senior/student discount. For information call 683-5122 or write Princeton Pro Musica, P.O. Box 7006.

SEASON STARTS

For Young Audiences. Young Audiences of New Jersey will hold its annual kick-off dinner Monday at 6:30 at Commodities Corporation, Mt. Lucas Road.

The group, formerly known as the Conservatory Madrigal Ensemble, will perform music for chamber chorus from all musical periods. Regular rehearsals will be on Monday evenings, from 8-10 starting on September 30.

Frances F. Slade, music director of the Princeton Pro Musica, and Conservatory faculty member since 1982, will conduct the group. For an audition appointment call 921-7104.

WHAT'S AHEAD

For Opera Outings. The Westminster Conservatory "Opera Outings" will begin its third year of excursions to the New York Metropolitan opera with a Wine and Cheese Party in Williamson Loonge on the Westminster Choir College campus on Sunday, September 29.

The Saturday matinee opera series will include a new production of Carmen, Porgy and Bess and Parade, which includes a one-act ballet by Satie, Les Momelles de Tiresias, an opera buffa by Poulenc and L'Enfont et Les Sortileges, a one-act by Ravel.

As in the past, lectures on the operas will be offered for both the serious opera buff and the casual opera goer. The class meets on Monday evenings before the scheduled performance, from 7:30 to 10 p.m. with a break for refreshments. Each opera is presented within the context of the operatic tradition: the circumstances and occasions, legends surrounding the composer, the opera, and its history.

Music

This year, two special lectures have been added. The first, on the historical development of opera, will chart the influence and social expectations which helped to shape its evolution. The second will examine the necessary ingredients for a successful opera performance, such as the singers, conductors, designers, costumes, lights, scenery and the role of major opera houses throughout the world.

This year Opera Outings is expanding to include the world of chamber music. The Westminster Conservatory has purchased tickets for two performances of the "Beethoven Cycle" series at Carnegie Hall to be performed by the Juilliard String Quartet. On Sunday, February 9, at 3 p.m., the program will include Quartet in A. Opus 18, No. 5; and Quartet in C-sharp Minor, Opus 131.

The program on Sunday, March 9, will be Quartet in C Minor, Opus 18, No. 4; Quartet in E-flat major, Opus 74, "The Harp," and Quartet in A Minor, Opus 132. Ticket prices include round trip coach transportation. For more information call the conservatory office.

GUITARIST TO STAR

In Folk Society Concert. The Princeton Folk Music Society will feature Bob Brozman in concert on Friday at 8 p.m. at the YM-YWCA.

Bob Brozman is a master of blues, Hawaiian, early jazz, ragtime, and original guitar styles, and he has an act that keeps audiences on the edge of their seats. His mainstay is the novel mixing of a broad repertoire of American string styles that have never been brought together before.

Switching among his antique nickel-plated National guitars, mandolin, and ukelele, Bob unleashes a set of hard-driving rhythms and fast brilliant technique. Some of his instrumental trademarks, like a clear, powerful slide tone and rapid syncopated triplets, are distinctive among contemporary players.

Bob Brozman

Along the way, Bob shows off a talent for humor, from the zany to the sardonic, that underlies all of his tunes. He pounds his guitars like a drum, whips them up behind his head, spins them in the air between licks, and picks them in places where most guitarists didn't know there were places. His vocals are equally pyrotechnic, ranging from yodels and talking blues to wild scat-singing.

Admission is $5 for adults, $4 for students, $4 for Society members, $2 for children and senior citizens. There are no advance sales. Memberships are available at the door. For further information call 924-9143.

MARKS 25 YEARS

Of Piano Instruction. The New School for Music Study, which has introduced hundreds of Princeton area youngsters to the piano, is celebrating its 25th anniversary this month.

Founded by Frances Clark and Louise Goss, the school not only teaches students of all ages, but also trains teachers and is a research center attracting music educators from all over the country and abroad to observe its methods. Originally located at 353 Nassau Street, it now occupies an historic colonial building at 90 Main Street in Kingston.

Film-makers Hugh and Suzanne Johnston have produced a movie about the school, A Time to Begin. Expressing the school's philosophy that "there is music in every child and every child can know the joy of music at the piano," the film has been seen by thousands of parents across the country on PTO programs and educational television.

A number of young people trained at the New School have gone on to careers as performers, university music professors, public school music teachers, composers, even jazz musicians. Although the school's orientation is classical, there is instruction in jazz and rock styles, electronic keyboards and synthesizers.

The Frances Clark Libary for Piono Students, a series of study books named for the school's president and published by Summy-Birchard Music of Princeton, is used by piano teachers in all parts of the world. A new Japanese edition of the Library's elementary series, The Music Tree, has just been released.

Two years ago the school formed its own publishing division, and The New School for Music Study Press now has 14 books in print and six in production. Louise L. Goss is general editor, as well as the school's vice president.

Faculty members travel worldwide to music teachers' associations and conventions, and college and university campuses, lecturing on the New School approach and serving as consultants.

BACH SING-A-LONG

At Choir College. A choral sing-along of two works of Bach will be held on Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Bristol Chapel on the Westminster Choir College campus. The Sing-Along is the first fall event of the continuing series in Westminster's Baroque Festival.

Frauke Haaseman, conductor, and Glenn Parker, accompanist, will lead the audience in Bach's Mognificot and Cantata No. 4 (Christ log in Todesbonden). Eight Westminster Choir College students will perform the solo parts.

Everyone may participate in the performance. Scores will be provided at the door. For more information, call 921-7100.

ART

DAZZLING ROSENBORGS

At Princeton Gallery of Fine Art, Ralph Rosenborg isn't exactly a household name in trendy art circles although his paintings hang in the Hirschhorn, the Whitney, the Guggenheim and the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and he's been included in prestigious retrospectives on American art at the Guggenheim, the Corcoran Gallery and the Museum of Modern Art.

It's not that Rosenborg is a newcomer to the art scene — he's been painting and exhibiting for the last 50 years — it's just that he's always out of step with the rest of the parade. Usually, it's a step ahead. In the 1930's, when Social Realism was holding sway, Rosenborg was experimenting with Abstract Expressionism — a movement later exploited successfully by action painters such as Jackson Pollack.

Rosenborg has never been conveniently slotted into any 'school' of painting or been picked up as a 'media darling' for his 15 minutes of fame.

The one-man show currently at the Princeton Gallery of Fine Art presents two series of the artist's works. The twelve watercolors on handmade paper were done between 1969 and 1976, while the "American Landscape" series of oils on canvas were completed in the last year. At the last minute, as a point of comparison, the gallery threw in one of Rosenborg's vintage paintings. The picturegraphic glyphs that populate the earlier work have completely disappeared from the later ones, but the thickly applied paints remain.

The small watercolors–the largest is less than 12" x 16"–play out variations on the simple still-life theme of a centrally arranged bouquet of flowers in a vase. Individual blossoms cannot be distinguished but are delineated through a fugitive network of colorful blotches and squiggles set against a diaphanous wash of background tints. Clarity is achieved through the carefully controlled flow and mingling of the radiant colorations.

Among the oil landscapes, "Mountain and Blue Sky" is composed of such vibrant hues of red oranges and yellows that it burns with the intensity of the sun. Slender seams of white flash across the fiery landscape. In delicate contrast, the pale blue sky is a subtle blending of tone and undertone.

As with the simple floral arrangements, the landscapes have been reduced to the barest detail. The only recognizable element is an undulating horizon line that bisects each canvas and defines the two fields of color. Paint is applied thickly, in short brush strokes that suggest a colorful checkerboard. "Dark Sky and Mountain" and "Still Mountain Sky" have a radiant prismatic effect.

These recent works are neither entirely abstract nor representational and the artist treads a virtuoso line between expressionism and impressionism. He continues to be an original.

19th Century Landscapes at PAM. Two side-by-side exhibits at the Princeton Art Museum effectively capture the spirit of the 19th century romantic art movement.

"Nineteenth Century Photographs by Europeans" is a rare collection of sepia-toned albumin prints that are remarkable for their clarity and craftsmanship. This was the era of the Grand Tour and included in these photos are scenes of St. Marks in Venice, the Baths of Caracalla and Pompeiian tombs. Architectural elements are captured in exquisite detail as in a series of Spanish arches in which light and shadow outline patterns of lacy filigree.

The artistic effects achieved by these photographers are all the more remarkable considering they were made only a few years after Louis Daguerre first introduced the whole concept of photography to the world.

From a technical standpoint, the most interesting photo here is Gustave Le Grey's "Brig Upon the Water", taken in 1855. This famous early French print shows a lone brig on the water off the south coast of France. The richly textured details include a shimmering sea and shoreline and a dramatically backlit cloud formation that gives the scene a moonlight effect.

What is unusual in that Le Grey apparently made the print from a single negative rather than two (one for the sky, the other for the ground) which was usual at the time.

The complementing half of the art museum's exhibit is "American 19th Century Landscape Paintings" by second generation Hudson River School painters.

Overwhelming the rest of the paintings, which are quite small in size, is Albert Bierstadt's panoramic landscape "Mt. Adams, Washington." Bierstadt specialized in heroically-scaled landscapes of the Wild West and this work is typical of the genre. A snowcapped mountain rises majestically from the background mists while in the foreground a small group of Noble Savages prepares to break camp.

The basic vocabulary of the Hudson River School — both first and second generations — was the same: river panoramas, mountain and lake scenes, woodlands and coastal landscapes, all demonstrating a concern for the effect of light.

Frederic Church carried the theme a step farther by taking his sketch pad to more exotic topographical spots, here represented by two lush and atmospheric evocations of the tropics, richly colored and bathed in a luminous glow.

Both Asher Durand and Jasper Cropsey are here. The Cropsey works lean toward minutely detailed bucolic landscapes while Durand, one of the founders of American landscape paintings, favors a more dramatic approach.

Most of these painters suffered a decline in their popularity when a less romantic style of painting came into vogue. One of those who made a successful transition was George Inness. In his landscape of Albano, Italy, it is possible to see that his colors and treatment have been greatly influenced by the more modern French impressionists.

—Marion Burdick

"UNTITLED," a 1984 mono print by Annelies Pruisken, will be on display at the Arts Council of Princeton through October 6. The artist's works were inspired by her observations of walruses, seals and sea lions in the Chicago Museum of Natural History.

AMERICAN INDIAN

As Subject & Photographer. "The Photograph and the American Indian" is the subject of a conference and exhibition sponsored by the Program in American Studies and the Collections of Western Americana of the library at Princeton University. The conference will convene at the University this Wednesday through Saturday, and the exhibition will remain on view at Firestone Library through January 5, 1986.

The exhibition presents a range of photographs of American Indians from the earliest images of the 1840s to a selection of recent photographs taken by Native American photographers. The exhibition and the conference attempt to focus on the interaction between Indians and photographers in the 140 years that have passed since the first camera captured its first Indian subject. Both events are made possible by a grant from the New Jersey Department of Higher Education.

The exhibition includes not only many of the illustrious names of early photographic history, such as David Octavius Hill and Robert Adamson, Matthew Brady, Eadweard Muybridge, Timothy O'Sullivan and William Henry Jackson; it also represents photographers whose preservation of Indian subjects on film became an obsession, such as Edward Curtis, Frederick Monsen, Sumner Matteson, Laura Gilpin, and Ulli Steltzer, a former Princeton resident.

An unusual aspect of the exhibition is the attention it pays to photographers of American Indians who are also American Indians themselves. Native American photographers in the show include not only the Tlingit photographers Benjamin Haldane and Thomas Eaton dating from the late 19th century, but even Sitting Bull himself.

The public is invited to the opening of the exhibition this Wednesday from 8 until 11 p.m. and to the conference lectures and films. Twenty scholars and photographers will present papers on September 19-21, illustrated with slides and films.

The schedule of lectures, films, list of participants, and exhibition viewing, is available at the Firestone Library Special Collections Gallery. There is no registration fee.

Alfred Bush is the curator of the Princeton Collections of Western Americana. Lee Mitchell is director of the Program in American Studies.

Princeton Football Team to Meet Dartmouth Saturday, Hoping to Make Rogerson a Winner in His 1st Game Here

For Ron Rogerson, Princeton University's 19th head football coach, the time to demonstrate what he can do has arrived.

This affable, upbeat man from Maine has brought a new coaching staff, a new offense and a new attitude to a team sorely in need of a new direction. The Tigers haven't enjoyed a satisfactory season since 1981, and Rogerson will employ these and other strategies in an attempt to reverse the decline.

Alumni and fans grown

SPORTS

skeptical over the last three years wonder how he can achieve something at Princeton that eluded him at Maine, where his record was 19-23-1 over four seasons. Starting this Saturday against Dartmouth in Hanover, Rogerson will get his first chance to prove them right or wrong.

He certainly seems to have the players solidly behind him, an ingredient that was missing in Frank Navarro's last years here.

As the Tigers set off on their bi-annual trip to New Hampshire, other, more pleasant memories of Navarro's tenure come to mind. In 1979, Navarro's second season, the Orange and Black made the trip to Dartmouth and won a major victory, shutting out the Big Green, 16-0. That win helped propel Princeton to its first winning season in nine years.

It's the last time the sun has shone on Old Nassau in Hanover. Two dismal defeats in the rain followed in 1981 and 1983. Dartmouth spotted Princeton a 7-0 lead four years ago, but won going away, 32-13. In 1983, the home team prevailed 20-3.

Butler's Debut There. A lacklustre Princeton offense went nowhere for the first half of the 1983 game, and in the final 30 minutes an unknown sophomore, Doug Butler, replaced senior Steve Cusma at quarterback. He had limited success that afternoon in the rain, but showed enough to win the starting assignment against Bucknell, the following week.

Now in his final year and already owning most of Princeton's career passing records, Butler will be at the head of Rogerson's new Wing-T offense. (See accompanying box for report on how offense fared in Springfield scrimoge).

Butler may throw less this season than the previous two, unless the Tigers fall behind often. Rogerson is fairly deep in running backs, despite the fact that one scheduled starter, Chris Ratliff is sidelined with a sprained knee for at least the Dartmouth game.

Steve Magoline, who has run well in practice will start in his place, and Butch Climmons is set at fullback. One of the surprises to come out of the pre-season is Steve Foster. The 5'11, 170-lb sophomore will start at the other halfback slot. In reserve are Craig Fitchett, John Matthias, plus several others.

If the ground game gets in gear, and it's expected Rogerson will give it more opportunity than in past years, the rushing statistics may turn out to be more impressive than the passing. Tom Urquhart is the only receiver with any significant amount of varsity experience. Starting along with him this Saturday will be sophomore tight end Doug Struckman. Junior tight end Scott Koski, the projected starter in pre-season, is out indefinitely with an injury.

Tackle Eric Dreiband is the only starter returning from last year's offensive line. After much shuffling of personnel, Rogerson has decided, who else will start. They include senior Jay Fitzgibbons and junior Mike Harrer at guard; senior Mike Aladich at the other tackle, and senior Steve Kern at center.

Co-captains Key Defense. The defense will benefit from having both of the team's co-captains on the field at the same time. Jim Petrucci will anchor the line from his tackle spot, and Anthony DiTommaso will range far and wide as the middle linebacker.

Retaining the 4-3 alignment that Navarro instituted last year, senior John Baniewicz and junior Ned Elton will join Petrucci on the line a defensive end, and Rick Blosser will start at tackle.

Lorne Keller, a starter last year and junior Matt Heisler will play along with DiTomasso at linebacker.

Free safety Jim Anderson, starting his third year at that position, will get help from sophomore Dean Cain and junior Kevin Armstrong at cornerback, and Joe Harvey at strong safety.

Dartmouth a Question Mark. Princeton will meet a Dartmouth team that is trying to rebound from its own problems, generated by the first two consecutive losing seasons since 1954 and 1955.

The Big Green was 4-5-1 in 1983, and fell to a woeful 2-7 last year, ending with a 21-17 loss to a shaky Princeton squad in Palmer Stadium. That's Dartmouth's poorest mark since 1953, two years before Bob Blackman began to turn things around at Hanover.

With those kinds of numbers, you can be sure eighth-year coach Joe Yukica is feeling the heat. Hired the same year as Navarro, Yukica started well winning Ivy titles in 1978, 1981 and 1982.

However his overall record is an unimpressive, 31-34-1, because under Yukica Dartmouth has had zero success in non-league competition. It hasn't beaten a non-Ivy foe since he took over as coach.

Tigers Win Springfield Scrimmage

In the first scrimmage held in Palmer Stadium in many years, and one that featured kickoff returns, Princeton defeated Springfield College, 21-14, last Saturday afternoon. The Tigers' first string played one half, and finished with a 14-7 lead. The reserves for each team both scored an additional touchdown in the final two quarters.

Doug Butler connected on five of eight passes for 63 yards in the two quarters he worked, one a six-yard toss to fullback Butch Climmons for a touchdown. Climmons ran well, gaining 70 yards, including 36 on one run.

The most impressive newcomer was sophomore halfback Steve Foster, who has good speed. He scored the game's first touchdown on a two-yard run. Craig Fitchett, who played in the third quarter, scored the winning touchdown on a 36-yard run.

The first-string defense gave up one score, when the visitors recovered a fumble on a missed handoff between Butler and Foster on Princeton's 28. They scored on an 11-yard pass play. Butler was also sacked twice and threw one interception.

Butler was followed at quarterback by Brad Hammond, Sean Welsh and Gary Weisglas. Sophomore receiver Jeff Baker stood out in the second half with a couple of nice catches. Tom Urquhart had a 66-yard runback of a Springfield kickoff in the first quarter.

Overall, the Tigers had their good moments and well as their bad (particularly some glaring instances of sloppy tackling on defense) against an opponent weaker than any they will face all season. Springfield, a Division II team, has finished 3-7 the last three years. However, just two quarters of play may not be a true test for the first-string unit.

It could be to Princeton's advantage to be meeting Dartmouth in the first game this year, instead of the last. With the graduation of Mike Caraviello, the Green must find a quarterback, and neither of last year's reserves got much experience.

Senior Brian Stretch appears to be the leading candidate for the job, but he sat out all his sophomore season with an ankle injury, and threw just one pass as a junior. Junior David Gabianelli, who completed two of three aerials in 1984, is Stretch's main competitor. The word from Hanover is that Stretch has been impressive in pre-season.

Two of the team's top three runners, Lorenzo Chambers and Richard Weissman, have also departed. Chambers was far and away the top ground gainer, racking up 632 yards, 450 more than anyone else. His back-up, Ernie Torain, who gained 197, returns. A pair of average fullbacks, Rob Brown and Bill Daly, will probably alternate at that position.

Dartmouth does have its three top receivers back, led by first-team all-Ivy selection, Scott Truitt (37 receptions for 558 yards). A good-sized offensive line with 6-4 270-lb Slade Schuster at one of the tackle slots, returns intact.

Defensively, there are a few more holes, with only three starters to build around, one lineman and two linebackers. Every starter in the defensive secondary has departed. This may be something Butler can exploit to Princeton's advantage.

Unless the oddsmakers know something no one else does, this game will be rated a toss-up, or close to it. And it will be very surprising if it is decided by more than seven points.

The importance of a Princeton victory can not be overemphasized for the Tigers and Rogerson. As a first-year coach, he must begin to establish his credibility as soon as possible. Is he a winner? Can he make the Orange and Black into one?

Dartmouth is a beatable opponent at this point in time, and this is the kind of game Princeton must win if it is to have any chance of reaching the .500 mark. In the majority of the remaining games, victories will be a lot harder to come by.

NEWARK KNOCKED OFF

Ferris Next for PDS 11. On the basis of what he heard leading up to the game, a betting man would undoubtedly have picked Newark Academy to win last Saturday's football game with PDS.

The north Jersey team had size and speed, and the Panthers had a young, largely inexperienced squad. But as is so often the case in football, the outcome turned on a gutty determination displayed one of the combatants that made up for any other disparities between them.

In this case, it was demonstrated by the PDS defense, which bent, but never broke, allowing Newark to pile up almost 300 total yards on offense, but nothing but a big, fat zero on the scoreboard. By contrast, the Panthers' offense was held in check most of the afternoon.

Nevertheless, PDS pulled off one big pass play, and made it stand up for a 7-0 triumph. "This win did so much for our young team," commented coach Jim Walker. "Every game they'll get a little smarter and improve a little more."

Ferris an Unknown. This Friday at 3:30, PDS will shoot for its second victory when it meets a Pennsylvania team called Ferris. Walker knows virtually nothing about the school, much less its football team.

It is a training school for boys located near Philadelphia, similar to the one located here near Skillman. PDS has competed against the school in basketball. If the Panthers can produce another solid effort, they should have a solid shot at victory number two.

In addition to shutting out Newark, the PDS defense helped set up its offense for the game's only score. It came late in the first quarter.

Punting on fourth down, the home team's kicker had the snap from center sail over his head and Jeff Brown recovered for PDS on Newark's 24. Walker wasted no time going for the big play, and quarterback Tim Howard found Scott Haveson all alone in the end zone with his pass. Haveson's extra point made it 7-0.

A tenacious PDS defense and its own mistakes kept Newark far from the PDS end zone through the first, second and third quarters. Late in the third, PDS made its only big mistake of the game and it cost the Panthers six points.

A fumble recovery by Brown put Princeton Day in business on the Minutemen's 36. Howard dropped back and this time found Brown by himself, and he raced all the way to the end zone. However, this touchdown was nullified when a PDS lineman was penalized for being downfield on the pass play.

Newark mounted its only serious threat in the final period, reaching the PDS 16, before its drive stalled. PDS then ran out the clock.

"Our defense forced them to play a mistake-free game," Walker observed. "And our offense showed it has the potential for some big plays."

In addition to Brown's two fumble recoveries, Seth Woodward recovered one for PDS, Greg Heins intercepted a pass, and Chris Alexander got off a superb 62-yard punt to get PDS out of trouble. And naturally, Scott Miller was all over the field on defense, making or helping out on 27 tackles, despite playing most of the game with a bruised hand.

Walker is aware his young team still has plenty to work on, like blocking assignments for a running game that is not yet a threat, but the practices should be enjoyable this week.

ONE VICTORY, ONE TIE

For PDS Soccer Team. Off to a much better start than a year ago, the Princeton Day boys' soccer team beat Wardlaw, 1-0, last Friday in its opener, and then tied a strong Newark Academy team, 2-2, Saturday. Both games were on the road.

Senior Rich Pagano provided the only scoring against Wardlaw when his corner kick sailed untouched into the net in the second quarter.

Although, the Panthers came home victorious, coach Carlos Cara held a team meeting that evening to discuss offensive movement and defensive marking, and it paid off the following day. Newark, rated one of the top three private school teams in the state, had rolled over PDS a year ago. This time a fired up Blue and White squad almost pulled off an upset.

---

PDS took an early 1-0 lead on a penalty kick by fullback Jon DeRochi that held up into the third period. At that point Newark's top player tied the contest, 1-1, with a shot that ricocheted off a PDS defender. However, it was to be his only score of the day; sophomore Delon Mollett did a fine job of shutting him down the rest of the game, Cara pointed out.

---

Regulation time ran out with the score still tied, and it wasn't until five minutes were left in the second overtime that the tie was finally broken. PDS took a 2-1 lead when forward Scott West hit Don Shaffer with a crossing pass, and the junior halfback booted the ball home from 18 yards out. Unfortunately for PDS, soccer does not play a sudden death overtime, and with two minutes left Newark tied the score again on a booming shot

PHS Field Hockey Is Inexperienced, But Eager to Defend Its State Title

SEVEN YEARS EXPERIENCE: Goalie Caylyn Tobin (left) will be starting her fourth year on the varsity and forward Amy Kershaw her third when Princeton High School opens its season Friday at home against Nottingham. Little Tigers are the defending Group 3 state field hockey champions.

The Princeton High School field hockey team that will open its season Friday against Nottingham will carry three burdens on its shoulders.

First and foremost, and perhaps the easiest to overcome, the Little Tigers will want to defeat the Northstars.

Secondly, the loss of eight seniors will force coach Joyce Jones to insert new faces in the lineup; and finally, the most subtle, and perhaps hardest, burden to cope with: the Little Tigers are the defending Group 3 state champions. The pressure to repeat will be with them throughout the season.

The game with Nottingham will start at 3:45 at the Community Park field. Tuesday at the same time, PHS will entertain Princeton Day School.

Jones reports she is looking forward to the season ahead. "For sure we're more inexperienced," she agreed. "That's why I say we are going to do our share of stumbling and falling. But my expectations for this team are no different from any other. The goals are the same but the process may be different.

"We are going to hold on to our expectations, not what people around us expect." Jones said she felt that senior Amy Kershaw, whom she has selected as player-manager of the team, summed it up best when she said, "We are not going to play in the shadow of last year's championship team."

Four-year goalie Caylyn Tobin and Kershaw head the small list of returning senior starters. Other veterans, all juniors, around whom Jones will mold this year's team, include Eileen Causing, who scored the only goal in

"My Best Year Since I've Been Here," Says PHS Girls Soccer Coach Beacham

Three-fourths of the nucleus that Princeton High girls soccer coach Ed Beacham has been nurturing the past three years is intact — enough Beacham feels to make the Little Tigers a favorite to capture the Valley Division title in the CVC League.

PHS will open its season on Friday when it hosts Nottingham at 3:45 on its new playing field behind the high school, and on Tuesday it will entertain town rival Princeton Day, also at 3:45. Nottingham has proved to be a sticky foe as the Little Tigers have tied the North Stars but never beaten them.

Even though Beacham has lost two-year All-Mercer goalie Laura Nathan, sweeper Liz O'Donoghue, a three-year veteran, to graduation, and Laura Taber, who would have started as a freshman, to Stuart Country Day School, he predicts, "This will be as good a year as I've had since I've been here." Beacham is starting his fourth year.

His optimism is based on the skill and experience of his three senior tri-captains, Booie Lockwood, Fiona Little and Jenny Howarth, who have been playing on the varsity since they were freshmen. A fourth from that nucleus, Hilary Jones, will spend her senior year at Andover in Massachusetts. One other unexpected gap was the loss for a year due to knee surgery of Mary Hammlett, a transfer last season from PDS.

Area Competition Will Be Strong; Girls Tennis Hopes to Be Stronger

SINGLES PLAYERS: Senior Gail Ellis (left) and junior Sara Pickens will play singles for the Princeton High tennis team this season. Both are former doubles players.

The Princeton High School girls tennis team, Mercer County and Colonial Valley Conference champions last year, will begin defense of those titles this Wednesday afternoon when it opens its season against Steinert at home at 3:45.

The team will be at Nottingham High School Friday and at Lawrence High Tuesday.

For years past, Princeton High has been synonymous with championship tennis, and although the gap with neighboring schools grows less each year, the Little Tigers remain the team to beat.

PHS coach Bill Humes picks Princeton neighbor Princeton Day School as "certainly the class of the County," this season but he predicts his own team will be competitive again in league and tournament competiton.

"We'll be competitive. We're not as strong as in the past down the line." said Humes. "We'll be strong but we just don't have that No. 1 player."

Humes, incidentally, is starting his 26th year as a tennis coach at PHS, first with the boys and the past decade or so as coach of the girls team. "I guess you could say I'm the dean of coaching," he said.

Missing from last year's fine team, which reached the finals of the Central Jersey state tournament playoff before being eliminated by Franklin Township, are Irene Usiskin, the team's standout number

PHS to Meet McCorristin in Football Opener Friday Night At University's Frelinghuysen Field in Only 'Home' Game

"I think it's going to be a dogfight. The way our kids are playing, it's going to be a game."

Princeton High football coach Bill Cirullo has every reason to be more apprehensive than one might expect about the prospect of facing McCorristin, a team that hasn't won a game the past two years, in his season's opener Friday night.

The game will be played on Frelinghuysen Field located at the open end of Palmer Stadium on the Princeton University campus. Kickoff is 7:30.

Because Princeton High's own field is being resurfaced this year, this will be the only "home game" this season for the Little Tigers. "They're talking about making it our homecoming game and having a big pep rally," reported Cirullo.

Off his squad's performance in four pre-season scrimmages, Cirullo commented that he is concerned about the team's inability to establish any kind of offense.

"I'm concerned about McCorristin and I think our kids better be concerned. They read too much in the papers," said Cirullo.

"They (McCorristin) have a new coach. He's gung ho, he's enthusiastic.

They have big people, they've got athletes, they've got numbers. They always had the numbers even when they were losing 20 in a row," continued Cirullo. "They've got all they need to be competitors.

The new coach of the Iron Mikes is Rich Kopp, who installed a multiple offense when he was surprised at the turnout: 42 on the varsity-jayvee squad, 30 more on the freshman team. His son, Randy Kopp, will quarterback the team.

Kopp is determined to reverse the football fortunes at McCorristin and claims the support of the entire school administration in that effort.

"They are going to try to establish an image," predicted Cirullo. "When you consider our last two seasons (PHS lost its first three both years) we want to start off quicker.

"So you've got two teams, both of which have targeted the first game as rather important."

PHS tuned up for its opener by scrimmaging New Brunswick and South Hunterdon last week. The result? If anything the team looked worse, said Cirullo, who reported PHS was outplayed by both the two smaller schools.

"They beat us to the ball. We didn't play with any enthusiasm," said Cirullo of South Hunterdon.

Against New Brunswick, Cirullo said he wanted to concentrate on establishing a ground game. "We established a zero running game.

"They handled us. Our kids didn't carry through their assignments. They weren't driving to complete their blocks. They were making contact and slipping off. You can't do that and mount any kind of offense."

There were, however, two highlights, Cirullo said. One was the passing of Tim Rumer, who threw for about 120 yards, even though Cirullo didn't want to throw, and two fine defensive stands, one where PHS held New Brunswick for four downs inside the five. "That's very good," said Cirullo.

Two-Quarterback Team? The battle between Rumer and Paul Fisher for starting quarterback is still up in the air, Cirullo reported. The key, he said, will be which one can better handle the varsity pressure.

"In terms of talent both are about the same. Fisher has an edge in running, Rumer has an edge in passing. If both can handle the heat, then I'll run them both.

"We don't have to be a one quarterback team; we can be a two quarterback team. My only concern is if they are game ready."

Roh Bosley, Mike Riddick, Pat McKellar and Chris Moseley are going to run the ball, with Riddick and Bosley carrying on the sweeps and option plays and Moseley converting on the short yardage plays.

AN EDGE IN PASSING: Junior Tim Rumer, who is battling Paul Fisher for the quarterback position on the PHS football team, has an edge in passing, says coach Bill Cirullo. The 6-2, 170 pound Rumer is a southpaw.

Observed Cirullo, "We're not running as well as I might like, but there hasn't been much room to run. I'm talking about shots on the handoff."

Bill Mathes seems to have won the starting center position, Keith Webber and Alex Murgo will be the tackles and Terrance Thomas and John Fisher the likely starting guards.

Veteran guard Rob Lester has become a question mark with a shoulder problem, Cirullo reported, and sophomore John Thompson has been lost for at least a month with a fractured bone in his foot.

"I was going to show him. I was toying with the idea of working him on the option. The kid can fly. He's an excellent athlete and that's a big loss," said Cirullo of Thompson.

What effect will playing all their remaining eight games away have on the Little Tigers? Not much in the opinion of Cirullo, who pointed out that PHS did not win a single game at home last year, all four wins coming on the road.

"In that sense, it's kind of a motivator for us and I will use that," said Cirullo. "I'm not going to worry about it and I'm not going to let it be a factor."

Right now, all he is worried about is beating McCorristin in Friday's opening game.

Princeton's 1-0 victory over Demerest in the state title game, Jessica Fraker, Noel Mann, Karen Johnson and Tory Crimmins.

Jones also intends to draw on a number of sophomores from last year's undefeated freshman team, coached by Debbie Maple. It was the second year in a row that the freshman team has gone undefeated.

"The nucleus is out here, but there are no guarantees who will be playing," said Jones.

"I would say youthfulness and enthusiasm are the two words that best describe this year's players. The critical factor is whether we are able to learn from our mistakes and continue forward."

Team to Beat. For all that, Jones, who accomplished the unique feat of winning a state title both in field hockey and lacrosse last year, knows it isn't going to be easy.

"The competition in this area certainly improves with each season. Knowing you are going to be the team to beat and knowing this season we are going to have to start from zero ... everyone is going to be up for us."

The key this year, observes Jones, will be for the team to be able to maintain its intensity and be ready physically and mentally for every game.

PHS played Hun to a 1-1 tie in a scrimmage and engaged in three more in a Play Day Saturday with other area teams at West Windsor High.

For the immediate future Jones says the team will start with the bread and butter goal of winning the CVC league championship. Then the Mercer County title, which it lost last year to Hopewell Valley.

As for winning another state title, Jones just smiles and says she is looking forward to the start of the season.

that hit the crossbar and went in.

Cara was generally pleased with his team's start, but is worried about his bench strength at some positions, which forced several players to play the entire game against Newark, including the two overtime sessions. He also lamented the number of missed scoring opportunities, and is hoping shooting drills will correct that.

PDS will have a mid-week scrimmage with Princeton High Wednesday, and then play two more road games, meeting Ewing on Saturday and Morristown-Beard Monday. The first official home game is Saturday, Sept. 28 against Montclair-Kimberly.

PDS STARTS WITH WIN

In Field Hockey. The Princeton Day field hockey team, the defending Prep A champion, began where it left off last season, with a 1-0 victory over Newark Academy last Saturday afternoon.

After a scoreless first half, the Panthers finally broke though the home team's defense at the 10-minute mark. Junior right inside Betsy Jaffee converted a pass from senior Catherine Barone for the game's only score.

---

The Blue and White survived a scare at the end of the contest when a potential game-tying goal by Newark was ruled to have been scored after the final whistle. Elisa DeRochi, PDS's goalkeeper, needed to make just one save.

Princeton Day's next test will come this Wednesday when it meets Pingry at home. The following Tuesday, the Panthers will travel across town to Princeton High for what promises to be a tough match-up. Coach Cheryl Silva expects her team's toughest competition among private schools will come from Kent Place in the battle for the Prep A title. Hun, a Prep B entry, will also be fielding a solid team, Silva feels.

HUN IS 12-6 VICTOR

In Football Opener. Two scoring drives and some fine defensive play in the second half were all Hun School needed to defeat Jenkintown, 12-6, last week in its football opener. Buried forever in the euphoria of victory was last year's 0-8 effort.

Hun will try to extend its winning streak on Saturday when it travels to Livingston to oppose Newark Academy in a 1 p.m. game. In its opening game against Princeton Day School, Newark rolled up 286 yards on offense, more than twice the number of PDS, but still lost a 7-0 decision.

Hun coach Bill Quirk reported that someone told him it would be a matter of getting his players psyched up for Newark.

"That's not going to be a problem," insisted Quirk. "They've tasted victory and they like it. If there is a problem, it may be that they are too high."

Quirk confessed that he had some anxious moments on the sideline in Jenkintown when the home team scored in the first period on a six-yard run.

"It scared me," admitted Quirk. "I started having thoughts about last year. I was worried about all the stress we had put on having the kids believing in themselves....

"They proved me wrong and I was glad. They went out and buckled down."

Hun capped a 59-yard scoring drive in the second period when quarterback Bob Sakala sneaked over from the one. Hun then adding the winning TD in the third period, fullback Tim Burke's one-yard dive ending a 40-yard march. Both tries for the extra point were blocked.

Salasko threw the ball 15 times and completed four. "When we needed one, he completed it," said Quirk, who reported that two key passes, one to tight end Tim O'Gorman and another to Nick Miller, kept scoring drives alive.

Then it was up to the Hun defense. In the first quarter, Hun was a little sloppy, but Quirk said he expected that, attributing it to first-game, first-quarter jitters. "In the second half we played tough defense. We held them to 27 total yards on the ground."

Quirk singled out two key plays with 1:25 left to play that enabled Hun to preserve its win. With the home team on the Hun 20, O'Gorman and Tony Yin sacked the Jenkintown quarterback for a 15-yard loss.

On the next play, Jenkintown looked like it was going to get it all back and more on a deep pass that Quirk said, "from my angle looked like it was going to be complete.

"But Salasko came out of nowhere with a diving block and knocked it down."

Commenting on the game, Quirk said that Hun's two scores did not come easily. "We had to work for them." He singled out John Audifferen, who was Hun's leading ground gainer with 46 yards in 13 carries, and Miller, who had two nice runs for yardage on counter plays. Miller was credited with 26 yards on three carries.

Miller also caught two passes while O'Gorman and Audifferen snagged one each.

HUN OFF TO FAST START

In Soccer. "It was a good weekend but it is still early to have an idea what our season is going to be like."

Hun second-year soccer coach Dave Potter may be cautious about the rest of the season but he had to like the beginning. Hun won the Shipley Tournament Saturday when it defeated Shipley and Perkiomen and it opened its season with a win over Solebury. In all three victories Hun posted shutouts.

Hun will next oppose Newark Academy away on Saturday and then host Hopewell Valley Tuesday under the lights at 7:30 at Zimmer Field in its home opener.

It was scheduled to meet a strong Peddie team earlier in the week, a team that Potter commented "will be a good measuring stick for us."

The championship game with host Shipley ended in a scoreless tie. When the overtime was also scoreless, the two teams battled through a shootout. Hun scored on all five of its kicks while Shipley missed on its fourth. As a result the game went into the record book as a 1-0 victory for Hun.

"It was a good game for us," said Potter. "Shipley is a very high pressure, defensive team. Their field is small; all the factors were to their advantage. We learned a few things."

In the opening round, Hun routed Perkiomen, 11-0, as Deonte Monyoukaye, the sophomore transfer student from Trenton High, scored four to have been the only two to finish out of four entrants.

On to the Next. One triathlon would seem to be plenty — for at least a week, maybe longer — but Mrs. Bolster was ready to enter her second, the Monmouth County Park System Sprint Triathlon which took place last Sunday. In contrast to the previous week, the weather was perfect — warm and sunny with low humidity.

The quarter-mile ocean swim was in a "pretty heavy" sea against a brisk wind, but swimming is her strong suit. The 14-mile bike ride, to Sandy Hook and back, was "on the flat," as was the four-mile run on the Boardwalk. She was pleased to find she could jog/dog trot the entire distance without having to slow down to a walk.

Husband Joe, whom she calls her trainer, was at the finish line, surprised and "just beside himself with joy" to see his wife coming along almost a half hour sooner than he expected her. There were 350 entrants, men and women, of whom 332 started, and 307 finished. Mrs. Bolster was 289th overall, with a time of 1:55.

"It was very, very enjoyable," she says, "a kind of a thrill to take off 25 minutes, although it was substantially easier because it was so much cooler and the biking and running were on the flat. It's wonderful to finish and to think, 'Oh, golly, I did it.' "

Other Princetonians. Mrs. Bolster, who is always ready to praise athletic performance in others, insists that other Princeton residents who compete with her also be recognized. Loraine Wood, who teaches at the Hun School and was a varsity swimmer as a Princeton undergraduate, was 8th overall in the Schooleys Mountain Triathlon and first in her age group in the swimming leg.

Susan Bova, age 29, who was also competing in her first triathlon that hot Saturday, was 48th overall and race-walked the entire final distance.

In the Monmouth County event, trophies were given to the first 30 men who finished and the first 10 women. Livingston Johnson, 28-year-old son of Hallett and Mellon Johnson of Pretty Brook Road, won a trophy for placing 26th overall, as did John Cummings, a Princeton High School senior, who was 30th.

Barbara Van Horn, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Paul E. Van Horn Jr., and a 1985 graduate of Denison University, placed 4th among the woman. It was her first triathlon. In addition, Mrs. Bolster says that several members of the Princeton Area Masters Program placed in several events in their age categories in the Masters National Swimming Championships at Brown University in August.

In the Genes. Meanwhile, on the very same hot Saturday that his mother was dogtrotting the last uphill and down of the Schooleys Mountain event, Jim Bolster, age 30 and the head swimming coach at Columbia University, was winning the prestigious Mighty Hamptons Triathlon on the eastern end of Long Island. This involved a 1.5 mile ocean swim, a 25-mile bike ride and a 10 mile run.

"A dark horse, a fluke, he was never expected to win," his mother says, not too successfully supressing her pride.

After two triathlons in less than 10 days, Tink Bolster may have found a new outlet for her seemingly boundless energy and keen competitive spirit. "What I need to improve is the running," she muses. "I'm weak there, and it's kind of nice to think I could get better."

goals and veteran Deron Strickman-Levitas added two. Adding single goals were Rick Brenner, Dan Blank, Joe Romano, Colin Mitchell and Ken Hill.

Monyoukaye and Strickman-Levitas combined for five goals in Hun's opening, 7-0, win over Solebury.

"They aren't one of the stronger teams we will play this year, but we played well and that was satisfying," commented Potter on the win.

The two Hun goalies who shared in the three shutouts were Ed Belmont and Drew Sigafoos.

14 assists, as PHS won four of its last five to finish with a 11-10 record. "Booie should have a good year; she has the best feet on the team," acknowledged Beacham.

To replace Nathan in goal, Beacham intends to turn to freshman Saskia Webber, whom he described as "probably the best freshman on the team." Another freshman who will start somewhere, he says, is Gwen Lockwood, Booie's younger sister.

Junior Rebecca Van Dyke is the leading contender to replace O'Donoghue at sweeper and she will be flanked by another sister tandem, senior Desiree Ferdinandi and junior Alisa Ferdinandi as wingbacks.

The Lockwood sisters and senior Tracey Hemmingway, the latter hampered by a back injury, will play the midfield while Little, Howarth and Katie Geiger will be on the line. Junior Emily White, will be the stopper back.

Three sophomores challenging for starting positions are Maria Tucker, Clarice Chen and Sarah Marchand. Beacham also reports having a number of freshmen out who are fine players.

"For a change, we have more numbers than in the past," said Beacham. "This year, I have two teams with 17 on a team; last year I had two teams of 11 each.

"Numbers breed success. Then you get competition. No numbers, no competition. When you have only 22 kids, they know they have to play. So I'm happy about the extra depth."

"For four years I've worked toward this year," summed up Beacham. "We're not up with the Ewings and the Steinerts —it's difficult to compete with them — but I think we can win the Valley Division. We have as good a shot as anybody — and we'll probably be favored to win."

If you're good enough to win the league title then you should be good enough to get into the state tournament, observed Beacham.

1985 looks like the Year of the Little Tiger.

one player for whom Humes has no equal replacement, and Eleanor Gorman, another singles players. Also not back is Nell Pinneo, a fine doubles player, who has been sidelined with a foot injury sustained in lacrosse.

---

Ellis, Bailey Captains. Two seniors, Gail Ellis and Cindy Bailey are co-captains of this year's team and will play singles. Another singles player will be junior Sara Pickens. What order they will play will be determined by challenge matches before the opener.

In doubles, Humes reported one set will pair juniors Elizabeth Ignat and Sharon Johnson, "who play well together."

Another possible combination is Kathy Smith and Jessica Berman, both seniors, but two more juniors expected to play are Lulu Bradford and Barbara Goida.

Under future stars Humes lists sophomore Susan Crystal, junior Susan Davidson and four freshmen: Elizabeth Medina, Jill Litt, Johanna Baum and Sara Silverstein. "We'll bring them up and keep an eye on them, try to get them into tournaments," said Humes, "so by the time they're juniors and seniors they'll know what the situation is."

One reason for Princeton's continued success on the tennis court bas been the large number of candidates Humes can draw from. His squad of more than 50 is larger than some football teams and to handle them all Humes teaches half at the school courts and his assistant, John Zorzi, takes the remainder over to the Community Park courts. Said Humes, "It's amazing the number of kids who are interested." PHS has a no-cut policy.

As for the outlook for the present season, Humes conceded the competition will be a lot keener without Usiskin. In the CVC league, he says that Hopewell Valley and West Windsor will both be strong. Two years ago, West Windsor won the CVC crown when it defeated PHS enroute to a 20-2 season.

Still, Humes is quick to include PHS as one of the top contenders. "We'll just have to see what happens," he concluded.
